RENEW DEMAND TO HALT ARMS SALES TO JAPS

Senators Urge Action So U. S. 'Will Get Out Of' Conflict Between Nippon, China.

SILENT ON TREATY'S END

Abrogation 'Simply Means No More Excuses, Gestures,' House Leader Says.

(By United Press)
WASHINGTON — Termination of the American-Japanese trade treaty brought renewed demands today by some senators for the United States "to get out of the Japanese-Chinese war" by placing an embargo on shipments of war materials to Japan.

The state department maintained a deliberate silence as the time set by the Japanese for expiration of the treaty passed yesterday. This government considers the treaty ended at midnight tonight.

The closest approach to the administration's attitude came from house foreign affairs committee Chairman Sol Bloom, D., N. Y., who summed up the treaty's abrogation this way: "It simply means no more excuses and no more gestures."

Senate sentiment on an embargo, however, was by no means crystallized. Several members have been calling for an embargo or other penalties against Japan for violation of treaties in the far east. In general, they are the ones who predicted today that the senate would take some definite action soon.

Many Are Opposed.
But a United Press check of many members of the senate revealed that a large majority of those polled are opposed to drastic action at this time. While declining to be quoted, they favored taking things easy and avoiding any action that would irritate Japan.

Those senators also doubted that the senate foreign relations committee would propose bills for an embargo now pending.

Contrasted with these opinions were those of a large group of other senators who believed we should wait and see how Japan reacts over a period of time to abrogation of the treaty.

That attitude conformed with the apparent strategy of state department officials. There has been no official statement since Secretary of State Cordell Hull announced early this week that this government would await "developments" in the Far East before making any move.

West Urges Brunner as Presidential Candidate

SEN. A. VIC. DONAHEY

These three men were the central figures in a surprising development which came out of a caucus of 17th congressional district Democratic leaders who met in Mt. Vernon last night. West, former district congressman while Brunner was the party's state executive committee chairman urged Ohio Democrats to back the former Mansfield mayor as a presidential possibility at the national convention next summer, recommending that he be made the party's second choice with Senator A. Vic. Donahey as the "favorite son." West emphasized his plea stating that Donahey and Brunner should be made "trustees of Ohio Democracy" at the nominating convention.

TALKS TO 17th DEMS

District Leaders Fail to Endorse Candidate for Congressional Seat.

Charles West, former 17th district congressman and undersecretary of the interior, last night urged Ohio Democrats to back Henry G. Brunner of Mansfield as a presidential possibility at the national convention next summer, recommending that he be made the party's second choice with Senator A. Vic. Donahey as the favorite son.

West, who represented the six-county district at the same time Brunner, three-times mayor of Mansfield was the party's state executive committee chairman, spoke before a group of Democratic leaders of the 17th congressional district who met in Mt. Vernon last night to endorse a candidate for the unexpired term of the late Rep. William A. Ashbrook, Johnstown Democrat.

West said Brunner and Donahey should be made the "trustees of Ohio Democracy" at the nominating convention.

The meeting, however, failed to endorse a candidate for the special primary to be held Feb. 6. The election has been set for Feb. 27.

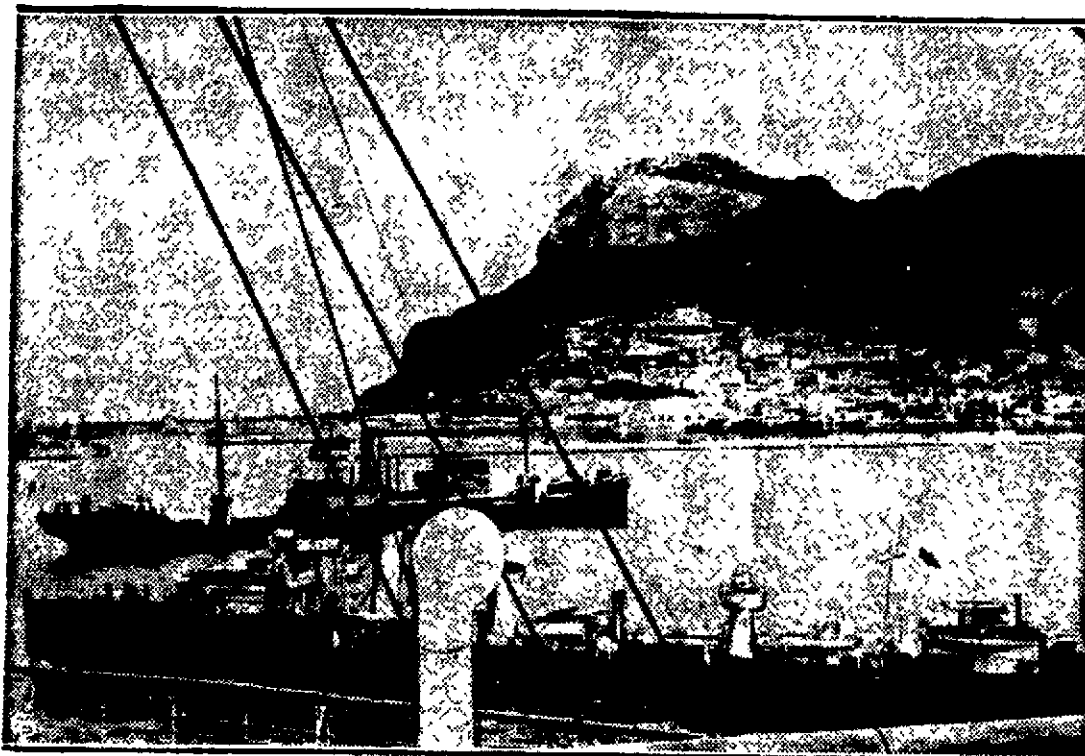

Hear Donahey Won't Run.
In Washington today reports circulated after Donahey's call on President Roosevelt that Donahey had decided against entering the Ohio political primaries as a "favorite son."

Dispatches said the Ohio senator declined to discuss his plans or reveal what he said to the president except to say that "Ohio political matters" were touched upon and that Mr. Roosevelt had summoned him. He indicated that he would disclose his plans sometime in February.

Donahey has not decided whether to run for re-election to the senate, although he has insisted that he would prefer to retire. E. B. Kallmerten, state Democratic central committee man who called last night's meeting at Mt. Vernon, said today that the group had named the counties which were to select and endorse the delegates to attend the national convention from this district.

Richland and Licking counties are to each name one delegate to the national convention while Ashland and Knox counties are (Continued on Page 7, Col. 6)

UMW Waits Wheeler Role In Lewis' Show

Miners Ask if Montana Is CIO Chief's Choice for White House; Communist Flag Raising Leaves Sore Spot.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS — Sen. Burton K. Wheeler (D., Mont.) asserting that Franklin D. Roosevelt could get a third term nomination if he wants it, today appealed to the president to make known his political intentions immediately.

(By Associated Press)
COLUMBUS — Sen. Burton K. Wheeler, long considered a friend of labor, came here today to address the United Mine Workers of America and stimulated speculation on this question: "Is Wheeler the man John L. Lewis wants in the White House?"

The Montana Democrat's appearance portended more drama for convention delegates still angry over the "dastardly trick" of a prankster, who unfurled a Communist flag on the stage while Lewis was speaking.

The words of Lewis, president of the miners and the Congress of Industrial Organizations, were closely watched today for any hint that he would support Wheeler for the presidency.

The Montanan was advanced as a presidential possibility when Lewis, with many words of praise, invited him to speak before the mine workers.

Since then the CIO leader has broken with the New Deal, criticized Paul V. McNutt, Democratic federal security administrator with presidential ambitions, and predicted a Roosevelt third-term campaign would end in "ignominious defeat."

Renews Denials.
Yesterday's flag incident provided a perfect setting for the CIO leader again to deny accusations that his organization is inhabited by Communists.

A nation-wide broadcast was in progress, commemorating the founding of the U. M. W. 50 years ago. Lewis was speaking. Suddenly, from the stage loft, a huge red banner with a hammer and sickle was unfurled.

The commencement address will be given by Dr. A. L. Stradley, dean of the college of liberal arts at Ohio State university. He will speak on "Durable Satisfaction."

Included on the program will be the salutation by Harold Williams, class president, violin solo, "Ave Maria," by Lois Robinson, accompanied by Janet Raughman, and singing of the class song, composed by Vivian Miller.

W. L. Miller, superintendent of schools, will introduce Dr. Stradley. W. C. Mead, a member of the board of education, will present the diplomas. Rev. David N. Roller, pastor of the First Presbyterian church, will give the invocation and benediction.

MERCURY HITS ZERO 10TH DAY

No Relief Seen Before Sunday; Ice Gorge 175 Miles Long Forms in Ohio River.

Mansfielders were beginning to take their zero weather in stride today as the mercury dropped to three below, the 10th day this month that the temperature has been at zero or below and the 17th day it was under 10 above zero.

While the weatherman predicted no relief before Sunday, residents of Ohio river cities watched a "huge glacier" 175 miles long backing up the river past Cincinnati, threatening a flood disaster and halting all traffic.

The massive ice gorge extends from Louisville, Ky., up the river to New Richmond, O., just above Cincinnati, and engineers said it will reach to Huntington, W. Va., over the week-end if the cold continues.

U. S. engineers said ice was piled 10 to 12 feet above the river surface at North Bend, Ind. Ice floes were from six inches to nearly three feet thick. The greatest threat, engineers said, is in a sudden thaw and rain which would force the river out of its banks before the ice can be cleared away.

The sub-zero weather which extended over all of Ohio again today closed schools at Ada and in the Washington Courthouse area where rural roads were blocked by snowdrifts. It was six below zero at Washington Courthouse. Columbus had three below, Cleveland, three above, and Cincinnati, two below.

A trace of snow fell in the Mansfield area last night, but there was not enough to cause any delay in traffic. By noon today the mercury was up to five above zero. Yesterday, when the temperature failed to get above nine (Continued on Page 7, Col. 8)

GABLE SIGNS AT $4,000 A WEEK

Movie Star To Get That Salary For Next Seven Years.
HOLLYWOOD — (AP) — Clark Gable has signed a contract with Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer for a reported salary of $4,000 a week for the next seven years. Supposedly the pay increase is $1,000 a week.

The pay-checks will be coming in 52 weeks every year—the usual annual contract is for 40 weeks—and Gable will get paid even for the weeks in October, November and December when he goes hunting.

The new contract calls for at least three films a year.

NEW RUSSIAN ATTACKS FAIL, HELSINKI SAYS

Attempts to Smash Through Finland's Defenses Result in Further Losses.

Finnish Leaders Say Soviet Planes Attempt to Get Food to Starved Troops.

(By Associated Press)
STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) — An Aftenbladet dispatch from Tallinn, Estonia, reported today that Marshal Klementi Voroshilov had left for the Finnish front yesterday, accompanied by the chief of the army general staff and others.

HELSENKI — Soviet Russian forces on two fronts have failed in attempts to smash through Finland's defenses and are in difficulties, Finnish reports said today.

Military authorities reported Red army divisions had been stopped at Aittokari and Kollaa-joki, on the front northeast of Lake Ladoga, in drives to relieve large Russian forces virtually isolated near Kitea.

In Lapland, another large Russian force seemed to be in difficulty near Markajarvi where, a Finnish communiqué said, an enemy attack "was repulsed."

This indicated an unsuccessful counterattack on the Salla front about 80 miles from the Russian frontier. Retreating to Markajarvi some days ago after abandoning a drive intended to cut through Finland's narrow waist, a Red army force of 40,000 men had been forced to wage rear-guard warfare.

Unofficial accounts said about 6,000 Russians were in peril of starvation in the Salla district and that Russian warplanes were attempting to get food to them by parachute.

Charge Across Lakes.
In the southeast, where wave after wave of Russians were said to have charged across the frozen lakes on the flank of the Manner line in a costly effort to reach the outnumbered force at Kitea, Finns pictured the Red army on a tremendous treadmill.

Since the war started, they said, the Russians have sent men and machines against the Finns in repeated assaults but have remained virtually at their starting place.

VOLUNTEER RULE

Roosevelt Tells How Americans May Fight Abroad.

WASHINGTON — (AP) — President Roosevelt said today that Americans are free to volunteer for service in foreign armies—without loss of citizenship—provided they take no oath of allegiance to the belligerent power.

Americans Hear 'Suggestion' to Get Out of Sweden

STOCKHOLM, Sweden — (AP) — The American legation has sent letters to all Americans in Sweden suggesting that it would be wise to leave the country unless they find it necessary to stay, a legation spokesman said today.

In the letter, the legation said that the situation in Scandinavia was not changed. The advice was based on the European situation generally, it was emphasized.

The spokesman denied reports that the letters were based on rumors of German troop concentrations in the Stettin area, across the Baltic from Sweden.

He said that the letter contained no order to leave Sweden and not even a suggestion that it might be a good idea.

There are between 600 and 700 Americans in Sweden.

HIGHWAY CRISIS

Beightler Says Ohio Should Spend $50 Million on Roads.
CLEVELAND — (AP) — Robert S. Beightler, state highway director, says Ohio needs $50,000,000 to modernize its roads.

He told highway engineers at a regional conference last night that much of the state's 18,000-mile system needs rebuilding, adding:

"Today we are making little if any headway. Some day Ohio is going to face a crisis."

Beightler favors more multiple lane roads and more freeways in approaches to cities. He believed Ohio's gasoline tax is "high enough" for highway maintenance, but advocates all taxes derived from motor vehicles be used for highway purposes.

The director also favors legislation to prevent political changes in highway department personnel.

CITY OF FLINT NEARS U. S. PORT

American Freighter, Central Figure in Sea Epic, to Be Docked Tomorrow.

(By United Press)
BALTIMORE — The S. S. City of Flint, nearing the end of a modern odyssey of the sea, steamed past the Virginia Capes today.

The battered little American freighter had not been within sight of U. S. shores since last Oct. 3 when it sailed out of New York harbor on what was to have been a routine cargo trip to European waters.

Tomorrow morning the Flint is due to dock at Baltimore harbor.

Two officials of the United States Lines—charter operators of the Flint—boarded the freighter as it passed the Virginia Capes. They brought with them a payroll for the American crew. The 40 sailors aboard the Flint have not been paid since their vessel left New York City.

In the months since the 4,963-ton Flint went to sea it has become the central figure of a sea epic. First it was intercepted Oct. 9 by the German pocket battleship, Deutschland. The battleship (Continued on Page 7, Col. 2)

MANILA — (AP) — Globe wireless intercepted a message from the steamship President Quezon today reporting that the steamship Fu Yuang, 3,359 tons, of Taingao, Japan, was sinking slowly, with its bottom broken, off Hachijo Island, south of Yokohama, Japan.

The steamship Fu Yuang is listed in Lloyd's register as of Chinese registry. It was assumed, however, that it was now under Japanese control.

Barefoot Man Hands Out 1,000 Coins; 2,000 Riot In Struggle to Reach Him

Tired of Having Money, Eccentric Says While Crowd Rushes Him.
(By Associated Press)
LOS ANGELES — A tall man in bare feet started a riot on Main street by giving away more than 1,000 quarters, and today police sought means to curb his generosity.

The man, known only as Brother John, a picturesque figure of the sidewalk sector for more than 20 years, late yesterday started handing out 25-cent pieces to homeless men near a Main street cafe, announcing in stentorian tones:

"I'm feeding the hungry. I'm tired of having money. My sons, forget material things."

Men came running with outstretched hands, and within a few minutes some 2,000 persons were pushing and struggling to get within Brother John's coin-tossing distance.

CHAPTER IX

Wyndham Trevor would have liked to sample what was left of Paris night life with Claire as his companion and suggested that they might find a place to dance, but she put him off.

"I'm really quite tired, Mr. Trevor," she told York's friend. "If I can take a rain check, we'll go dancing some other time, eh?"

By the time she had explained to the Englishman what she meant by "rain check" and he had laughed in appreciation of her "jolly American slang," the taxi cab drew up at her hotel entrance and she stepped out.

"Good-bye, Miss Dutton," Trevor said at the door. "Don't forget about the—er—the rain check."

She noted by the clock that it was nearly midnight as she walked across the lobby to the elevator. In peacetimes there was an attendant to operate the lift day and night, but now, with the hotel reduced to depending upon what help it could get from men over military age, guests operated it themselves after the dinner hour.

Claire didn't trust herself to even glance at the card she had found in her pocket until she reached her floor, unlocked her door and switched on the lights of her room. Then she drew it from her coat with shaking fingers, and read:

"Tonight at 2 a. m., room 567. The door will be unlocked."

Just that, scrawled on a plain card. Nothing more, not even the "Z. Y." Noel had written on the other card he had inserted in her vanity case.

Claire was frightened for a minute, and then her courage returned. After all, she finally was going to get somewhere—learn something about Bill Cameron. Perhaps discover where he was, so she could make an effort to reach him. It might be risky, but she knew when she left the St. Croix and came back to Paris she might be in for trouble.

She hung up her coat and put her hat away, and then called downstairs to check the time with her wrist watch. She didn't want to be late for her appointment. The watch was right on the dot with the hotel clock.

Claire tried to sit down, but soon found herself walking across the floor of her large room. Back and forth, back and forth. At least this was better than trying to sit still; it gave her something to do.

After what seemed ages, the hand of her watch crept around to the one o'clock mark, and a moment later she was startled by the sound of the phone bell by her bed. It was Welles Sanford. He was downstairs, and wanted to see her. From the tone of his voice, she knew something had happened, and she was trembling so when she went to the elevator that she had a hard time getting the door open.

Sanford led her to a secluded corner and made her sit down before he told her his news.

"A body has been found, Claire," he said, slowly. "It was found floating in the Seine tonight."

The girl felt a sudden contraction in her chest. It was as though for a moment her lungs had ceased to function.

"You think you think it may be Bill?" She spoke with an effort and the words seemed to rasp her throat.

"Yes," the attache answered. "It was impossible to make a positive identification because of the condition of the body. It was mutilated—the head, I mean."

Hope surged within her.

"Then how—how do you know it is he?" she demanded.

"Cameron's clothes were on the body. His papers in the pockets."

"Was—was there anything else?"

Sanford reached in his pocket, produced a heavy envelope, and took a ring and watch from it.

"These, too, were on the body. The ring on a finger, the watch in his pocket. Do you recognize them?"

Claire gingerly took the ring in her hand and turned it over and over. It was a cameo in an old-fashioned setting. She had seen it many times, on Bill Cameron's finger. He had seen her looking at it one day, and slipped it from his hand for her to examine more closely.

"It was my father's," he said. "I've worn it ever since his death."

"Yes, it's his ring," Claire's lips quivered as she confirmed the identification.

"And the watch?" Sanford held it out to her and explained the ring in the meantime.

"The watch was a very thin model, the case like a small rectangular prism on the back. The dial was on the inside."

"A. C. Williams, Ambassador Hotel," she handed the watch over, and looked at her wrist, dully.

"It is a belonged to Bill," she said. "His mother found it and gave it to him as a gift on his birthday."

"I'll have a watchman go to the police and get it from the morgue and bring it to the hotel."

"I'll have a watchman go to the police and get it from the morgue and bring it to the hotel."

"I'll have a watchman go to the police and get it from the morgue and bring it to the hotel."

"I'll have a watchman go to the police and get it from the morgue and bring it to the hotel."

"I'll have a watchman go to the police and get it from the morgue and bring it to the hotel."

"I'll have a watchman go to the police and get it from the morgue and bring it to the hotel."

voice echoed dully in her own ears. She didn't know why she was asking these questions which seemed so obvious.

"Yes. The embassy will attend to everything. He will be buried here, temporarily. After the war is over, we'll see that he's taken home if that is what his family wishes."

"You're absolutely positive?"

"Yes. The only thing we need to make it complete is fingerprints. Borner has taken those already."

"I suppose you'll want to be going back as soon as possible, now," Sanford suggested kindly.

"I think I can get you on a neutral boat which is sailing from Marseilles day after tomorrow."

ready. I've cabled Washington to send a copy of Cameron's prints from the files there. It is just a matter of form, but of course we can't pass up any possible chance to make the identification absolute."

Claire nodded.

"I suppose you'll want to be going back as soon as possible, now," Sanford suggested kindly.

"I think I can get you on a neutral boat which is sailing from Marseilles day after tomorrow."

for Mexico. From there, you can get a boat to New York. Will that be all right, Claire?"

"Yes, that will be all right."

"Is there anything else I can do for you?"

"When—when will the services be?"

"Tomorrow morning—that is this morning at ten o'clock from the undertaker's chapel. Ordinarily, services would be at the American Church, but under the circumstances, I think this will be best. The rector will be asked to officiate. I'll attend to that later this morning."

"I'll want to be there," Claire said. Sanford gave her the address and then left, explaining he had many things to do before the hour of the services.

Claire sat in a deep leather chair in the lobby after he had gone, her brain numbed by the shock of the news she had just heard. Bill Cameron was dead! Nothing else mattered, now.

She tried to think of things they had done together. She recalled little jokes they had had between themselves. Every moment of intimacy she could remember, and there were not many of them, came crowding into her mind.

Suddenly, she felt tears welling from her eyes, and when she looked toward the desk, everything seemed blurred. With an effort she controlled herself and dried her eyes with her handkerchief. Again she glanced toward the desk, and then started up from her chair. The clock over the reception desk pointed at five minutes to two.

She walked with dragging steps to the elevator, opened the door and as it slid shut, pressed the button for the fourth floor. There she alighted and walked down the corridor to the stairs, and climbed to the fifth floor. A dim blue light made it barely possible to read the number on the doors.

At Room 567, she paused and looked around. There was no one else in the corridor. She turned the knob and walked in. The room was dark.

IN THE RING BOOK
HENRY ARMSTRONG may become the first man to ever hold four pugilistic crowns.

The colored cloutier now has his eyes on the middleweight title held by Cefarino Garcia, and, having beaten the champion once, he figures he could probably do it again.

Armstrong already boasts of whatever distinction may go with being a triple champion, although his status in this respect has been reduced, through retirement as featherweight king and loss of the lightweight title to Lou Ambers.

There doesn't appear to be a man in the welterweight division to cause Henry any fear at present, and he should hold on to this title indefinitely.

Armstrong proved his superiority over one of the better men in the class that he rules the other night when he banged Pedro Montanez all over the premises to win in the ninth round.

Montanez was cut and battered and bleeding, groggy and helpless to the point of being unable to lift his hands when the referee halted the bout.

Suggests System to Rule Bidding
TO PREVENT the wild bidding of major league clubs for players freed by Judge Landis, Eddie Brannick, secretary of the New York Giants, suggests that a maximum price tag should be put on the free agents by the commissioner.

Then, after all the interested clubs had agreed to meet this amount, the player could take his choice, Brannick says.

But Brannick's idea is not popular. Under his suggestion "most of the free agents who were worth anything would wind up with the Yankees, one veteran baseball man points out, "because of the Yanks' game."

Tygers to Lose, Bellevue Says

Coach Hoffman to Send Mansfield High Cagers Against Former Charges Tonight.

VERN HOFFMAN returns to the old home town tonight and he is anxious to see what kind of a welcome awaits him. Judging from the way other guests have been treated, Hoffman, accompanied by his Tygers, may not enjoy his visit to Bellevue, where he served as athletic director and head coach for nine years prior to coming to Mansfield high school.

The Tyger cagers will go into tonight's game the "under-dogs," but Hoffman may have a surprise in store for his former charges.

Scranton, Pa., Boxer Scores 'Double Slam.'

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Joe Downey, a comparative novice in the leather-pushing business, scored a double slam last night. The Scranton, Pa., fighter dropped Frankie Kern, Steelton, Pa., heavyweight in the first round and then, as a substitute, accelerated his brief professional career by stopping Dave Willis, Pennsboro, N. J., in the third.

percentage of getting into the world's series dough."

Bob Monetti, of Bucyrus, former pro grid star, who first starred at Bucyrus and Michigan State, terms his most thrilling experience a touchdown in a college game. It was his winning touchdown jaunt against Colgate in his junior year.

Herb Ducked Into Wrong Place.

ONE of the best basketball yams in several seasons is told by Coach Herb Hackenberg of Canton Lehman on himself.

It seems Herb and the Canton township scholastic cagers he coached last year were participating in a close game at Akron. With a few seconds to go, Herb decided to walk down the sidelines and consult the official scorers. He reached the officials' stand and they immediately shouted for him to get out of the way. The only vacant space was under the table so there Herb ducked—but not for long. There was the sudden explosion of the timer's gun under the table ending the game and Herb darned near landed in the center of the court. He forgot to mention who won the game.

be at a forward.

What guard position the shift will effect was not made known by the Tyger tactician.

However, regardless of the superiority shown by the Tygers in past years, Bellevue is definitely established as the favorite, and by the Bellevue boosters, too.

They would like nothing better than to see Bellevue take the Tygers into camp. Not because it would be another basketball victory, but due to the fact that their former coach is on the other side.

While they respect Hoffman and his coaching ability, they can't see how the Tygers can possibly win. That's the general opinion in Bellevue.

"Maybe they're right," Hoffman said today when he heard of the confidence rampant in his old home town. But he intimated that perhaps the Bellevue boys would be surprised.

Bellevue is favored on scores against common foes. The hosts defeated Sandusky by a bigger margin than the Tygers did, and they also defeated Hamilton, which whipped Mansfield.

Bellevue, with a veteran team, and Mansfield played twice last season, the Tygers losing during the regular season and winning the district finals from Bellevue.

Coach Attacks Zone Defense

'Impossible to Penetrate,' Van Alstyne Says.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Mr. Ben Van Alstyne doesn't care how it's done—either by an act of congress, a proclamation or by a write-in referendum. "But the zone defense is basketball must go," he stoutly maintains.

And Van Alstyne's word necessarily carries weight. The mild-mannered coach of the Michigan State Spartans is not only an all-time Colgate great and a producer of fine midwestern teams but one who has the added distinction of having been a high school and a professional star—at one and the same time.

He explains that simply: "They weren't so strict about amateurism in those days."

Van Alstyne, who brought his team here to meet Long Island University in the feature of tonight's Madison Square Garden doubleheader, was guest of honor at a luncheon given by the Metropolitan Basketball Writers' association when he unloaded his blast at the zone.

"It's almost impossible to penetrate a tight zone defense and so there's nothing to do but stand way out front and fire away. If a team is hot, it'll win. If it's off, it's pitiful."

Tyger Tankmen Defeat Bellevue

Winning all but one first place, the Mansfield high school tankmen defeated Bellevue, 42 to 20, at Bellevue yesterday. The only event dropped by the Tygers was a relay race.

Weimer was a double winner for Mansfield, taking firsts in the 100 and 40-yard free style events. Houlett won the 100-yard breast stroke, McCorquodale took the 220-yard free style, Beam added the 100-yard back stroke and Hilgoss won the diving honors. The Mansfield medley team also was victorious.

Mack Ready To Top Bids For Ex-Tiger

Pittsburgh Reported to Have Offered McCoy $35,000 to Sign Contract.

By TOM SILER
CHICAGO —(AP)— A half dozen or so big league baseball clubs are engaged in a sociable, little game of "cut-throat" these days and young Benjamin McCoy is very happy about it all.

The club that wins the game will get McCoy, 21, an infielder by trade, and McCoy probably will get close to $40,000 and a five-figure contract for the 1940 season.

McCoy's fortunate position was not of his own making. Detroit mislabeled the youth in its farm operations and Commissioner K. M. Landis found out about it. The commissioner made a free agent of him along with 90 other Detroit hirelings.

So now McCoy sits by a newly-installed telephone in his Grandville, Mich., home and carries on negotiations with would-be employers. The commissioner ruled none of the free agents could sign with any club until 15 days after his ruling.

But after Sunday McCoy can hook up with any major league club except Detroit, the Chicago Cubs or St. Louis Browns. Landis edict banned Detroit from negotiating with any of its former players and barred the Cubs and Browns because they "meddled" with McCoy before he was made a free agent.

Connie Mack, manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, said yesterday he wanted and needed McCoy so badly that he would top any other offer. Pittsburgh was reported as offering McCoy $35,000 to sign, about $5,000 more than was offered by the New York Giants, Washington Senators and Brooklyn Dodgers.

McCoy informed the Chicago White Sox yesterday that he wanted in the neighborhood of $40,000 to sign a three-year contract at $10,000 per season.

Last year was his first with Detroit. He played 55 games at second base when Charley Gehring was injured, batting .302, scoring 38 runs and getting 58 hits for 86 bases.

BACK TO CARDS

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Columbus baseball fans again laid their fate in the hands of the St. Louis Cardinals from system today after negotiations were dropped for purchase of the Columbus club by local interests. Lee Huntington, banker and spokesman for the local syndicate, said the deal was "definitely off" for the coming season.

TOSSES HAT IN RING

GERMANTOWN, Md., (AP)— Walter Johnson, one of the most famous fast-ball pitchers of Major league baseball, tossed a hot one into the big-time political ring today—announcement of his candidacy for congress. He now will seek the Republican nomination to congress from Maryland's sixth district.

Giants Get New Infielder

FIRST RABBIT SHIPMENT FROM MISSOURI DUE

COLUMBUS —(AP)— The first shipment of the 25,000 rabbits ordered by the conservation commission for restocking Ohio fields will arrive from Missouri in a few days. Conservation Commissioner Don Waters said today.

The rabbits, purchased for 40 cents each, will be shipped direct to game wardens in each of the 88 counties for release, the commissioner said. However, the southern counties will receive a proportionately larger share of the cottontails. Waters added because there is little or no bird hunting in those sections.

Seeks Revenge for Mat Loss

Charley Layden Rematched With Masked Marvel.

Charley Layden, fiery Irish lad from Ft. Wayne, Ind., who dropped a disputed verdict to the Masked Marvel, mystery man of the wrestling pad, here Monday, will get another crack at the masked man next Monday night in the Armory ring.

Charley asked for another chance at the mystery man after a very questionable decision which brought about his defeat at the hands of the masked man.

Layden had made an excellent showing against the mysterious masked wrestler who has been defeating everything thrown against him here to date and the unfortunate verdict broke up what was a very even wrestling match up to that point.

"I think I got a very bad break in that decision," Layden stated, "and I feel that I should be given a chance to get even."

Ringsiders who saw the entire affair agree with Layden that it was a mistake on the part of the referee and on the strength of their opinion Matchmaker Tim Nolan has signed the two men to meet in the semi-final of next Monday's show in the Armory.

The feature of Monday's card will send Walter Stratton of Leetonia against Walter "Sneeze" Achui of Honolulu.

Zacharias Only Friendly House Boxer to Lose

Mansfield Amateurs Slated to Fight In Public Hall Again Tonight.

By CHARLES MARTIN

THREE Mansfield amateur fighters today were waiting the bell to return to second-round hostilities in the sixteenth edition of the Golden Gloves tournament at Public Auditorium in Cleveland tonight.

They are Paul Carbetta, Beauford Glover and Al Sauers, Friendly House youngsters, and the way they performed in opening matches last night at Cleveland before 4,000 roaring spectators, it's going to take some tough opposition to eliminate them.

While the trio won in impressive fashion there was still a little gloom hanging over the stable after Jake Zacharias, promising middleweight, dropped a decision to Joe Maxim, Collingwood A. C. boxer in one of the best bouts of the program.

Carbetta, hard-punching 112-pound lad, pulled one of the major upsets of the initial round by taking a decision from Leo Garrett, Carter A. C. leather singer.

Making his first appearance in the annual tourney, Carbetta, holder of numerous north central Ohio championships, tackling one of the open division favorites, but it made no difference.

The settlement simon pure started throwing leather in the opening seconds and never let up. He outlit and outboxed his rival in the first two rounds by a wide margin, but began missing a lot of rights in the third stanza.

His margin piled up in those first two rounds was more than enough to offset his rival's desperate rally.

Zacharias drew the pre-tourney favorite in the middleweight division, Maxim, who possessed a lightning-like left jab that continually bothered Zacharias, was a finalist in the 147-pound open division last year.

Young Glover, the outstanding lightweight in this district, didn't have a chance to display his wares. He won on a knockout in 45 seconds over Lorenzo Martin. Al Glover had to do was send over a couple of stiff rights and Martin took the count.

Al Sauers, who had four fights under his belt before last night, fought both lads mixed it up plenty in the opening chapter, but Sauers took command of the situation in the second heat.

A hard right near the end of that round turned the tide of battle and Love didn't answer the bell for the third. He suffered a deep cut over his left eye and the referee gave Sauers the nod. The Zacharias-Maxim battle was a thriller from the opening bell. Both boys landed stunning blows, but Maxim's beautiful left proved too much for Zacharias. The Mansfielder stood toe to toe with him in the final frame, but couldn't land his knockout punch. As the lads left the ring the crowd gave them a tremendous hand.

John Emerson, representing the Mansfield Y. M. C. A., the fifth local youth in the tourney, put up a good battle against Herb Eaton, but lost the decision.

Every member of the Ashland stable, including Ernie and Melvin McKinley of Mansfield lost their bouts.

Mel, who copped the 112-pound novice championship last year, met Mike Cefaratti, of the Godale A. C., Cleveland, in an open division match and lost a decision.

The former novice champion ran into a dynamite right and was unable to stop it. Several times Cefaratti sent McKinley on his heels with that right hook. When the judges gave Cefaratti the verdict, however, the crowd booed for several minutes.

Ernie, making his second bid in the 126-pound class in the open division, fought Joe Skilkoff, Goldstein A. C., and dropped a decision in a close fight.

Skilkoff gained an advantage in the opening round, but McKinley, who was eliminated in a first round bout last year, came back strong and more than held his own (Continued on Page 15)

FOUR ELEMENTS FORM CHINA'S 'NEW STRENGTH'

Men and Passive Resistance, Resources and Reorganized Armies Key to Power.

(Editor's note: The secrets of China's amazing resistance to Japanese aggression, explaining the ability of Generalissimo Chiang Kai Shek to hold out for two years and a half against a vastly superior military machine, are disclosed in detail today by James R. Young, Far Eastern manager of International News Service. The following article, fifth in a series of six, was cabled from Hong Kong toward the end of a 9,000-mile trip through China and received in New York prior to his recent arrest in Tokyo on undisclosed charges.)

By JAMES R. YOUNG Man-power.
Natural resources.
Reorganized armies.
Passive resistance.
These four elements explain China's new strength and form the key to her amazing ability to withstand the military might of Japan. China's remarkable recuperative powers, not in any one locality but throughout the enormous unconquered regions, are evidence of this nation's spirited determination to resist and defeat the Japanese empire. Militarily, large Chinese counter-offensives this winter and spring are not anticipated by foreign observers in Hong Kong. These are regarded as not possible and not feasible. The Chinese have found that organized local attacks upon Japanese positions constitute a more successful strategy. The surprising victory at Changsha proved to the Chinese five points:

- Japanese spirit and morale are lower than one year ago.
- Japanese equipment is not up to earlier standards.
- Chinese are better positioned to fight Japanese in regions away from railways and lines of communications.
- China's fighting spirit is better.
- The Chinese soldier need not be taught the reasons for his defense or offense—he has all the answers in his heart.
- The naval landing party south of Pakhoi and the approach to Nanning in southeast China were reported by Japanese sources as a strategic military victory entirely severing the supply of Chinese arms that come by sea. Actually, the Pakhoi route was closed a year ago by the Chinese.
- Fresh operations by Japan so far from home bring the enemy into the reputed stronghold of Kwangsi province. Any Japanese attempt to penetrate this area will duplicate, it is believed, another loss of Changsha proportions—30,000 men.
- For Kwangsi is the home of General Fui Chung-Hai, one of China's greatest military leaders. The Kwangsi men are rated China's best fighters.
- China's optimism is based on her ability to carry on this type of defensive operation for years. Her continued mobilization of troops, although they are not nearly so well equipped as the Japanese, can bring her present manpower to a figure over 3,000,000 with another 1,800,000 in reserve.
- The Chinese people are behind their army. This winter China is not facing the Valley Forge of one year ago. Her men are better clothed, although hundreds of young peasant recruits still wear sandals and rags. But padded cotton clothes and woolen blankets are keeping their bodies warmer this year than last.
- Army transportation units are better organized. Hospitalization is improving but far behind what is required to handle the wounded.

11 Seniors Take Major Roles In St. Peter's School Operetta

Eleven seniors of St. Peter's high school, shown above, will have lead roles in the operetta, "Jerry of Jericho Road," to be staged in the school auditorium at 8 p. m. Monday and Tuesday. Cast in the leads are: front row, left to right, Lawrence Smith, George Armstrong, Mary Vogel, Viola Myers, and Esther Cappadonna. Back row, left to right, Anthony Cappadonna, Catherine Basting, Ernest Cappadonna, Gene Cusic, Lillian Wentz and John E. Graf. Member of the sophomore, junior and freshman classes will make up the chorus, and stage the dance numbers.

Men who have weathered the Japanese attacks are better prepared to continue the resistance alongside fresh government troops.

The Japanese are suffering in this 30th month of their campaign from the almost impossible task of crushing mobile guerrilla units. Japan lacks the necessary reserves, equipment and adaptability to overcome this impenetrable and unforeseen obstacle.

Japan's military machine has thrust itself inland at many points. The machine has swept fan-wise over China. Weak points have withdrawn. Strong groups are menaced in holding their occupied regions. Japanese military leaders in China no longer have a satisfactory explanation why the situation is prolonged; their troops do not know or have forgotten the "holy war" angle.

The Japanese army is hampered by cholera and malaria. Two crescent pills after each meal is the rule.

China's manpower is barely touched, although her casualties have been enormous, probably three or four times those of the Japanese.

The Chinese assert, but this cannot be substantiated, that 15,000,000 able-bodied men are available for reserve training. If China's industrial re-organization can provide more rifle and gunpowder, if the transportation problem is solved, China can fill the gaps in her widespread army.

Every Chinese, from the leader in Chungking, to the lowest of ricksha pullers, believe China will win. The people and the army seem enthusiastic. The country seems to have recovered from the initial shock and fearful losses of great cities like Nanking.

Hit Isolated Garrisons.

The Chinese are concentrating attacks on isolated Japanese garrisons. They specialize in sabotage and skillful wrecking in the enemy's occupied zones. No startling achievements have been reported, but the constant blowing up of freight trains and attacks on Japanese troop trains is a menace the Japanese cannot escape.

The Chinese remove rails, using the spoils to make hand grenades and rifles. The Communist army in northwest China is noted for its home factories and industries that produce small arms war equipment.

Smuggling explosives and dynamite across and behind Japanese lines to destroy food depots, gasoline supplies, mechanized units, aviation camps and railway stations is a favorite method of attack.

Attacking Japanese controlled mines, factories and public utilities is part of the Chinese campaign.

Japan is suffering bitterly this winter in China's hilly regions. The much publicized mopping-up campaigns are causing the loss of many Japanese troops.

In aviation the Japanese remain masters. They will hold the upper hand as long as America supplies the oil and gasoline. The Chinese, according to latest authentic reports, have 10 to 12 air training schools. The quality of the men turned out and the value of the equipment are unknown to outsiders.

DEFENDS BINGO

NEW YORK—(AP)—Releasing three alleged bingo-addicts, a Queens county judge sharply criticized the "stupidity and hypocrisy" of the state laws against "innocent gambling." How was it possible, asked Judge Thomas Downs, "that twelve men and women, drawn by lot and chance themselves, shall determine whether or not these three defendants shall be stigmatized the rest of their lives as criminals because they participated in a game of bingo?"

900 Cities Have Radio-Equipped Cars For Police

CHICAGO—(AP)—Twelve years ago the Detroit police department pioneered in the development of radio equipped cars.

Today 900 American municipalities have followed the lead to provide radio car protection for their citizens, the International Association of Chiefs of Police reported.

The association gave high credit to Detroit, which not only pioneered the way for radio cars, but also established the widely adopted practice of equipping police cars with short wave radio receiving sets that cannot be tuned off the police station wave length.

California with 90 municipal police radio stations has more than any other state. Other leaders are New Jersey with 71; New York with 64; Massachusetts with 56; Pennsylvania with 43; and Michigan with 37.

Costs have been cut in many communities by consolidation. The Chicago police radio station is linked with more than 50 other police jurisdictions, covering three counties.

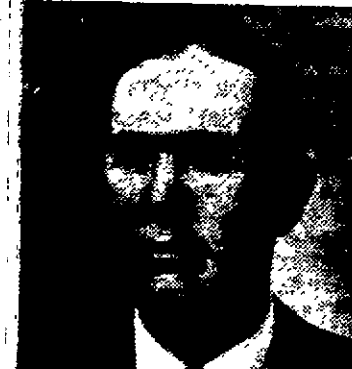

In 13 states—Florida, Georgia, Idaho, Indiana, Kentucky, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, Tennessee, North Carolina, South Dakota, Texas and Vermont—the whole cost of general relief is borne by local governments.

VICTIM OF GAS PAINS, BLOAT

MR. ROLL MESSER

Many people here will be interested in the experience of Mr. Roll Messer, 1526 Avenue "C," Council Bluffs, Iowa, who recently suffered gas pains and bloat until he found relief in Williams' Formula. He is so grateful for his relief he wants others to know about this remarkable medicine.

He says he can eat many foods now and is grateful for the opportunity to endorse such a fine medicine as Williams' Formula.

Williams' Formula is a Pure, Powerful medicine containing Valuable Natural Extracts and Minerals which start to work in a few minutes. It helps relieve acid stomach pains—it stimulates muscle action in the intestines and acts as a tonic laxative to relieve sick headaches or that lousy feeling and dizziness caused by constipation. Even a mild diuretic on the kidneys and assists Iron-Poor Blood with Iron.

Decide to get your Williams' Formula today. Two economical sizes—$1.50 and $6 at all good drug stores. Cost only a few cents a day to take and may be worth $10 a bottle to you for the relief it gives. We recommend it. Marsh's Drug Store, 11th at Diamond.

LOANS ON FSA PERMIT BUYING OF 6,180 FARMS

Total Likely to Reach Mark of 13,000 by July 1, Say U. S. Authorities.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON The Farm Security Administration has revealed that it has helped 6,180 tenants, sharecroppers and laborers purchase farms during the past two years.

With increased funds available under the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, the FSA expects to bring the total to 13,000 by July 1. Despite this aid farm tenancy is increasing by about 40,000 a year, officials estimated.

The Farm Tenant Act made $10,000,000 available the first year, $25,000,000 the second and $40,000,000 this year for loans to farmers in purchasing homes.

Nearly 20,000 tenants have applied to the FSA for the loans. The average borrower last year paid $5,562 for a 134-acre farm, and obtained an additional $1,198 for repairing or rebuilding of farm dwellings and barns. More than 2,000 farmers built new homes at an average cost of $1,313, the FSA reported.

Very few of the purchasers have been able to find fully developed farms at reasonable prices. Virtually all of them farms with rundown buildings and had to borrow to make improvements.

More than half of the borrowers were able to repair existing houses on the farms at an average cost of $378. Usually additional loans were needed for farm machinery, livestock, fences and land improvement.

Plans for the new homes were developed by FSA engineers. They usually provided for five rooms, a screened work porch, a front porch and complete wiring for electricity. The building was done by local contractors.

Loans under the Farm Tenant Act are amortized over 40 years at three per cent interest. While comparatively few of the installments will come due until Jan. 1, collections are in excess of maturities, the FSA said.

Loans for farm purchases have been made in every state and in Hawaii and Puerto Rico. The number ranged from one in Rhode Island to 630 in Mississippi. Heaviest purchases were made in the southern states where tenancy has been increasing most rapidly.

Alabama tenants purchased 541 farms at an average cost of $2,729. In Arkansas, 425 farms were purchased at an average cost of $2,620; Georgia tenants purchased 548 farms at an average cost of $2,587; Mississippi, 430 at an average of $2,284; and Texas, 437 at an average cost of $4,724.

The highest average cost per farm was $9,000 in Nevada, and the lowest $2,296 in Mississippi. Average improvements cost $2,212 in Louisiana, $2,556 in Montana, $2,489 in Wyoming and $244, the lowest, in Delaware.

BOOSTS FUND

City Gets $31,482 in Sales and Personal Tax Receipts.

Mansfield's general operating fund was increased $31,482 today with the receipt of the final 1939 sales tax money and funds from the October personal tax settlement.

Of the total amount, $27,997 represented the balance of the October tax settlement of which the city had obtained an advance draft of $15,000 early in September, City Auditor Paul L. Kelley said. The city's share totaled $42,997.

A total of $9,005 went into the general fund; $15,289 into the sinking fund; $1,945 for firemen's pensions and $1,758 for police pensions.

Sales tax receipts which totaled $3,485 represented the final 1939 distribution and also went into the general fund for operating purposes, Kelley said.

Distributing posters and wearing and his bride, the former Virginia Wolfe, hid their faces from the camera as they depart from juvenile court in Indianapolis. The judge ordered their marriage annulled. The shocking revelation proved a tragic blow to the young couple, who were separated in childhood and brought up separately.

Mansfield News-Journal AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

MANSFIELD, OHIO, FRIDAY, JANUARY 26, 1940.

If "the office is seeking the man" these days it seems to be showing rather poor judgment, in some instances.

The real question is whether even such a rich country as this could afford a third term of Roosevelt presidency.

Things are still happening to Byrd's snow cruiser, which seems as impractical at the South Pole as it was on Ohio highways.

Looking Forward From Graduation

AFTER twelve years of public schooling, superior to that provided by free schools in any other country in the world, 127 Mansfield boys and girls will be awarded diplomas as January graduates from Senior high school tonight.

They have heard the baccalaureate sermon, delivered last Sunday evening, and tonight they will hear another address by a man who has been in position for many years to study young people, to appreciate their problems and difficulties and to advise them soundly as to their future course.

Free schooling has been so intimately associated with the development of the United States as a democracy that it has come to be taken for granted to such extent that few, if any, children of school age, realize the costs involved in establishing and maintaining a public school system such as there is in Mansfield, or appreciate the advantages they enjoy, as compared with children in other countries, in many of which education is reserved for a fortunate few rather than made available to all.

At the age of eighteen—the average for graduation—it should be possible for every mentally normal boy and girl to have gained a quite clear understanding of democracy, as a theory of self government, and to realize the obligation of the individual to exercise self-discipline and share, to the extent of his or her ability, in responsibilities which cannot be escaped if privileges are to be enjoyed.

Voluntary observance of laws, and generally accepted rules of good conduct, is among the essentials of successful self-government. All crime and wilful violations of law argue against the principles of democracy, which assume that individuals are capable of governing themselves. These laws, and rules of conduct, are not hastily drawn restrictions—they are the accumulation of generations of experience, during which processes of trial and error brought slow progress toward the still imperfect civilization that has now been reached.

American history and biography can provide inspiration for all of today's graduates who care to profit therefrom. Many things yet remain to be done—and today's graduates should prepare to do some of them. There will be plenty of people to do the little jobs—but there must also be some who are willing to expend the time, energy and toil required to do the bigger work that lies ahead.

This will be "commencement" night for 127 young Mansfielders—may it also be the "beginning" of a long, useful and genuinely successful career for each of them.

More Women In Public Life

FOR A LONG TIME after their enfranchisement, American women were slow to avail themselves of their opportunities in public life. But lately they have been less "backward in coming forward." There are several women judges now in this country, and about a dozen women in the house and senate at Washington. They are becoming so familiar in congress that they are now taken as a matter of course.

One of the latest candidates for such office is Mrs. Frances Payne Bolton, wife of the late Congressman Chester C. Bolton of the 22nd Ohio district, who was regarded as a valuable member of the house. Mrs. Bolton has been active in philanthropy and women's affairs generally, and was familiar with her husband's work. As for more personal qualities:

"I sew whenever I get a chance," she says. "I don't play bridge. I don't gamble. I don't smoke and I don't drink."

Such women, tackling public affairs, often give very intelligent and devoted public service. Some observers say they are inclined to be more honest and faithful than men in such work and somewhat less given to "playing politics."

To Ski Like the Finns

CHICAGOANS, complains one of them, have neglected the exhilarating sport of skiing which has become popular in the East and West. They have lagged behind their fellow Americans in this winter activity because there were no nearby mountains for the purpose.

"Mere absence of hills, however, need not be a handicap," says the Chicago Daily News, urging its readers to get out and have some fun these winter days. There is a type of skiing which is done over fairly level ground.

This is the kind of skiing which the Finnish defenders have practiced successfully against Russian invaders. The ski used is broader, heavier and rounder in the middle than other skis. Its skiffle use fairly catapults the wearer along his way, through deep snow and over level terrain, with amazing speed and ease.

What with national interest in the Finns and Chicago's way of doing what it sets out to do it wouldn't be surprising to find this level skiing added to the ski sliding and ski jumping at which thousands of Americans are more or less expert these days.

Migration's Eastward Trend

EASTWARD migration is quite a novelty on a continent where the traditional movement has been to the west, but recent years have seen a return of some western families to New England, and now an entirely unexpected venture has been brought to notice.

Twenty-one California residents, comprising seven or eight families, are moving eastward in a caravan, to settle not even in an eastern state, but on an island in the sea. They will go first to Tampa, Fla., in automobiles, trucks and trailers. There they will buy a boat and transport themselves and their goods to a small island named East Caicos, in the Bahamas, several hundred miles out in the Atlantic.

The emigrants say they are planning a new way of life, where their old age can be comfortable, restful and harmonious, far from traffic, noise, pensions and politics.

The idea of any Californian moving out of that state in the hope of finding an Eden elsewhere, is in itself intriguing—but, after all, "somewhere else" always seems to have greater appeal for many people.

Not knowing much about music, one young lady asks if Phil Harmonic is regarded as a good teacher.

Man About Manhattan

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK—The rather shocking unemotionalism of New York is frequently manifested in the apathy of crowds toward individuals who are dead, in distress, or merely drunk or sleeping. Perhaps this is due to the prevalence of "sleepers" or jerks who, being homeless or at least witless for the time being, think nothing of stretching out on the sidewalk or on the even colder pavement of the subway stations and dropping off to sleep.

The other morning about 8:30 a man was sitting on the curb at Chambers street at its intersection with Seventh avenue. He needed a shave. His clothes were pretty shabby. By the thermometer on the Erie station, just two blocks away, the temperature was 35, just three degrees above freezing.

This man suddenly toppled over in the street. He lay with that terrible inertness of the very drunk or the dead. But he wasn't drunk, because his breathing was imperceptible. Chambers street at 9 o'clock in the morning is a busy street. It is the point of entry in Manhattan for thousands of commuters who live on the Jersey side. It would be no exaggeration to say that 300 people passed this man in the space of 15 minutes, yet not a single one paused to inquire after him, or to give aid. They accorded him that peculiar stare reserved for freaks or objects that inspire dread or loathing, but that was all. No one slackened pace. These people were hurrying to their offices and no unidentified body on the red bricks of Chambers street was going to delay them.

IN A FEW minutes a cop ran up and bent over the man. Right behind him came an ambulance and a police doctor. A hasty examination revealed neither hunger, nor narcotics, nor foul play. The man had suffered a heart attack. His heart had simply stopped beating. The hundreds who passed him and accorded him a glance of curiosity mingled with loathing do not know this. In all probability most of them went home that night and told of a contemptible bum they saw in the gutter. That is New York's way. That is the city and the pity of it. Perhaps no one is to blame. Perhaps there are no grounds for censure. The awful immensity of New York precludes the personal sympathy and warmth to be found in less populated localities.

And yet, this peculiar sense of detachment always startles me when I come upon it. Why, I can not truthfully say. Maybe it is simply the vanity of mortals who grieve for those who have passed on. "Probably it is some offshoot of fear, based on the subconscious realization that there, but for the Grace of God, lies George Tucker."

NEW YORK and its immediate vicinity has some lovely names and also some very hideous ones. There is Corlear's Hook, an elbow of land that jabs out from Manhattan into the East river that connotes the first gathering of the Dutch on these wilderness shores. For some peculiar reason this old Dutch name has always fascinated me. And so has San Juan Hill, a rather shabby section of New York now, but replete with much two-fisted lore. The name that horrifies me is Flushing. It was on Flushing meadow that the Fair was held. I do not know who gave this locality the name of Flushing, but whoever was responsible most certainly went out of their way to uglify an innocent community.

Names of places should be musical and picturesque with softly flowing syllables such as Yellow Tavern (say that softly to yourself) or Stony Point. Great Neck I dislike. Weehawkin is a fine name and one that no one forgets.

Looking Back

Monday, Jan. 26, 1920.

Twenty-five young people of United Brethren church enjoyed sleighing party to home of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Koons, east of city.

Miss Elizabeth Althouse underwent appendicitis operation at Parker sanitarium.

Charles L. Bushey, former Richland county surveyor, was elected president of Barborton real estate board.

A. B. Evers, son of First Lutheran church, underwent operation at Parker sanitarium.

Bernard H. Harris, Jr., Reformation teacher, died of pneumonia. Seven little friends of Charles G. Brown, Jr., were entertained by Mrs. J. Clarke Carter, Marion avenue.

FIVE YEARS AGO TODAY Saturday, Jan. 26, 1935.

Miss Helen Hartman and Paul Gains were married at St. Peter's Catholic church.

Mrs. Louise Goss, 81, resident of Mansfield for 25 years, died at her home.

Mr. and Mrs. LeRoy Towler celebrated their 15th wedding anniversary.

Friends honored Miss Margaret Lepper, 157 Lexington avenue, with a birthday party.

J. J. Schade, 219 West Third street, injured in an auto accident with a car driven by a Columbus resident.

TODAY IN HISTORY Edward Jenner, the English doctor who discovered that inoculation insured immunity to smallpox, died on Jan. 26, 1826.

Wringer Hands Modern Injury.

—By DR. CLENDENING

What is the meaning of the surgical phrase "wringer hands"?

This is a new form of injury which has been observed by traumatic surgeons. A woman using her washing machine has her hand drawn between the moving rubber rolls of the electric clothes wringer. Often it is drawn in above the wrist. When the hand is released, it is pale and only moderately sore and, on the contrary, sometimes numb. X-ray shows no fracture.

It is important that treatment should be applied immediately. The hand should be elevated, and an absorbent cotton compression dressing should be applied. This must be held firmly in place with an elastic bandage and the hand maintained in the elevated position. If this is done, swelling can be prevented and tissue death (necrosis) prevented. The dressing must be removed and pressure reapplied every four hours during the next two or three days. If the compression bandage is not applied, great swelling will occur and large areas of skin slough off.

Sometimes the injury seems so unimportant that a physician is not consulted until several days later, when severe damage is seen to have occurred.

Children may suffer from the same accident and the arm may be drawn in to the shoulder. The same measures should be used in treatment for the child as for the grownup.

His molasses was nutritive value other than its carbohydrate content?

Molasses, even in January when it is supposed to be very slow, is a quick form of nutrition. A dietetic research group at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology reports that "molasses supplies abundance of organic iron of greater value than the chemicals usually injected into blood of anemic persons, and the poorer and darker grades are richer in iron than the more refined kinds."

The iron in molasses is in the form which is available for building up the red coloring matter of the blood. Molasses is about six parts of iron per unit, while beef liver stands second with five. Oatmeal is third with four. Apricots, eggs and raisins have only two-thirds, one half and one-third as much iron as molasses. Spinach is only one-half of one part of iron.

Molasses, often called sorghum, has long been known to carry much of the vitamins of the green cane growth from which it is made. Buckwheat flour is high in vitamins A, B, G and E and a good content of minerals. Add yeast and butter and a stack of buckwheat cakes well covered with molasses, is a highly revitalizing food for winter weather.

Daily Bible Thought

The steps of a good man are ordered by the Lord; and he delighteth in his way. Though he falls he shall not be utterly cast down; for the Lord upholdeth him with his hand. Psalm 37, 23-24.

WASHINGTON Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON and ROBERT S. ALLEN

WASHINGTON—Beginning today, a big question mark hangs over Japanese-American relations. For today ends the commercial treaty between Japan and the United States, leaving this country free to embargo the entry of Japanese products into the U. S. A.

Since the U. S. buys about 30 per cent of all Japan's products, including 90 per cent of her silk, this country is in a position to deal Japan a terrific economic blow.

However, the secret strategy of the state department is to keep Japan guessing. They want to continue to drape the question-mark over Japanese-American relations.

The last thing they want is the Pittman bill, which would embargo Japanese products. The senator from Nevada is all ready to push this legislation through congress and probably has the ability to do so.

The state department fears this will only bring a crisis in the Far East and win the United States nothing.

If, on the other hand, the fear of such an embargo is kept dangling over Japan's head, our Far Eastern experts figure they may eventually squeeze the Japanese military, and help the more moderate civilian and naval factions in Japan to form a government which will bring peace in China.

Detroit Clean-Up.

THE NEXT big city clean-up to be started by the justice department will be in Detroit. It will get under way shortly after the "Christian Front" trials are finished in New York.

Behind-the-scenes fact is that Frank Murphy, while attorney general, hesitated about turning the crime spotlight on his old city because such a move might be interpreted as a backslap at some of the city bosses who helped defeat him for governor of Michigan.

However, when a Detroit woman killed herself and her child in the Detroit underworld, Murphy finally decided to move in. He had the G-men in Detroit several months before he stepped out of the justice department, and Bob Jackson, his successor, is carrying on the clean-up preliminaries.

Capital Chaff.

WEDDING BELLS are expected to ring soon for Colonel "Pink" Harrington, WPA administrator, and a brunette widow, Mrs. Frances Pearsons Rust. . . . Frank Hook, the scrappy Michigan congressman who pointed to Martin Dies' affiliation with a fellow-traveler of the Christian Front, is a World War veteran and member of the American Legion. He is also a former Michigan municipal judge. . . . Most interesting Birthday ball to be held on January 30 will be the "Birthday Bawl" given by one-year-old Alice Birney Robert, daughter of Chip Robert, secretary of the Democratic national committee. She was born on the same day as the president. . . . Star feature of the President's Birthday ball will be a song by Walter O'Keefe on the third term. It is called "I Just Can't Smile for Four Years More."

Baloney Economy.

DON'T BE fooled by the grandiose talk emanating from the house naval affairs committee about a $500,000,000 cut in the new navy program. It was just baloney economy. . . . The committee made the cut, all right, but it doesn't mean anything. It was just a paper reduction. Actually, the navy hasn't used up its money voted last year. Here is what happened:

The naval affairs committee does not pass on naval appropriations. These are handled by the appropriations committee. Naval affairs merely considers construction plans, or as they are known technically, "authorization measures." Before the appropriations committee will recommend an expenditure, congress must first pass a bill approving, or authorizing the purpose for which the money is to be spent.

There have been plenty of such authorizations which later were ditched by not granting funds. But an authorization is a powerful weapon to wrangle appropriations, and it's an old departmental strategy to put one through and then demand funds on the ground that congress "ordered" the expenditure.

That is exactly what is going on.

The Natural Sweet (A FARMER'S DIARY)

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

I SAW advertised in a farm paper, Clover Honey, 75c lb. I hunted up the place and bought a 60 lb. can, which is the smallest amount that can be purchased at that price. We are fond of honey, and find it most economical and healthfully satisfying for the family's "sweet teeth."

The big square can was full of a white sugary solid. My wife came with a spoon and took out several pounds. She makes delicious candy by stuffing dates with honey, dipping them in chocolate and topping with a nut meat. To warm the remainder so that it could be poured, I set the can on top of the circulating heater and forgot it for several hours. Another way would be to immerse it in a boiler of water. It must be warmed gently and not too fast in order not to impair the color and chemical composition. We poured the warm honey into quart glass jars, making it accessible and ready for use. After being warmed it will remain clear and amber colored for several months—if you can keep it that long.

"Why is extracted honey cheaper than the comb variety?" I asked the honey man. "Is it as pure?"

For answer he showed me the prunes and figs.

in the naval affairs committee. When the session convened, the navy brass-hats came forward with a $1,300,000,000 authorization program—a paper plan for building ships over a period of three to five years. There wasn't the remotest chance of congress voting any of this money this year, as the huge 1938 and 1939 authorizations are still uncompleted. Nevertheless, the new authorization scheme drew so much fire that the brass-hats decided that discretion was in order. Hence the loudly fanfared "$500,000,000 cut"—which doesn't save a cent in actual cash.

G-Men Secret. REPORTER calling the office of G-boss J. Edgar Hoover: "Has Mr. Hoover returned from Miami yet?" Secretary: "Just a moment, I'll inquire." A wait. Secretary: "The answer is, 'No comment.'"

Supreme Court Secrets.

GUARDS who daily guide hundreds of awed visitors through the marble halls of the U. S. Supreme court answer freely all questions about the tribunal. But there is one thing they never mention. This is the "locked docket," a big red book which each justice has but few people know about. It is seen only by the justice himself and his confidential secretary. The "locked docket" is the personal case ledger or journal of each of the nine justices. It is their most zealously guarded official possession, for in these books are recorded the innermost secrets of the court: how the justices voted on decisions, notes on the secret conferences of the court when decisions are reached (weeks before they are handed down), private comments and confidential discussions.

Millions could be made by a speculator if he could get his hands on one of these books. But not only are they kept in a locked cabinet, but each is separately secured with a special lock for which there is only one key. It is in the possession of the justice.

Merry-Go-Round.

SENATOR GEORGE NORRIS may be talking about retiring, but his peaches-and-cream complexion at 78 shows no need of it. Last summer while vacationing in Wisconsin, he swam twice daily in an ice-cold lake. . . . Natty Senator Joe Guffey, ardent Pennsylvania New Dealer, soon will blossom out as author of a third-term book titled "Roosevelt Again." (Copyright, 1940.)

NOVEL THAT WON NOBEL PRIZE ON NEW BOOK LIST

'Meek Heritage,' Given 1939 Award for Fiction, Tops Library's Additions.

The novel that won the Nobel prize for 1939, a sequel to an earlier best-seller and several mystery stories are on the list of new fiction volumes which go into circulation at the Public Library Monday.

EAGLES GATHER by Taylor Caldwell is a sequel to "Dynasty of Death." This novel depicts the life of the Bouchard family through the years from 1914 to 1930. The operations of the munitions industry form an important part of the plot. The book raises questions which are almost unanswerable, about the influence exerted by the munitions manufacturers upon national and international affairs.

MEEK HERITAGE by Frans Eemil Sillanpaa is the Nobel prize novel for 1939. Published in Finland in 1919, it was his second novel. It is the story of a feeble-minded Finnish farm laborer who, after a life of drudgery and poverty, is drawn into the Civil war on the side of the Reds. Janne is shot by the Whites without ever understanding the issues involved. The book paints a vivid picture of the history of Finland as well as telling a tragic tale of a futile life.

WILD ANIMALS compiled by Frances Elizabeth Clarke is a collection of great wild animal stories of our day. It includes tales by such well-known authors as William Beebe, Archibald Rutledge and others noted for their ability to depict wild life.

Other Fiction: SMILER WITH THE KNIFE, by Day Lewis; GOLDEN SWAN MURDER, Disney; CASE OF THE PERJURED PARROT, Gardner; and RED SPINNER by Snell.

Traces Napoleon's Rise. ROAD TO EMPIRE: LIFE AND TIMES OF BONAPARTE THE GENERAL by Fletcher Pratt describes the beginning of Napoleon's spectacular rise. It shows how his personal characteristics, his unique youth, combined with the mad, headstrong political set-up of the period, dovetailed to produce one of the strongest figures in world history. His singular ability and military acumen are appreciated after reading this work.

COSMIC RAYS by Robert Andrews Millikan consists of three lectures which relate the results of the group of workers at the Norman Bridge Laboratory of the California Institute of Technology. To give a more complete picture, the author also reports contributions of other workers.

MAN AGAINST MICROBE by Joseph Warwick Bigger, an English medical professor, is an explanation of microbiology and immunology. The author tells the history of these sciences and informs us of the progress of specialists who struggle to rid mankind of harmful microbes.

SEX EDUCATION IN THE HOME by Frances Bruce Strain is a small practical guidebook for puzzled parents, written clearly and simply.

Other non-fiction: IRON BREW by Holbrook; LADY HESTER STANHOPE, Maslip; POLITICS OF THE BALKANS, Roucek; HANDBOOK OF NORTHWEST FLOWERING PLANTS, Gilkey & Powell; FOREST TREES OF THE PACIFIC COAST, Eliot; ANIMALS OF THE SEASHORE, Richards; BIRD WATCHING DAYS, Robertson and Powell; RIDING LOGIC, Musler; GREATEST PAGES OF AMERICAN HUMOR, Leacock; HOUSE OF MITSUI, Russell; ABRAM S. HEWITT WITH SOME ACCOUNT OF PETER COOPER by Nevins.

MINERS WAIT WHEELER ROLE

Montana Senator to Speak at Convention Today; Delegates Angered by Red Flag.

Startled delegates rose to their feet and shouted, "Tear it down." The banner was removed while miners milled about, muttering angry protests.

Lewis, visibly shaken, completed the broadcast, restored order and said:

"It appears that someone has tried to perpetrate a most cowardly, reprehensible and dastardly trick. No one can regret this more than a delegate of the United Mine Workers."

"There are no Communists in the United Mine Workers of America," he declared, and the delegates cheered wildly. He explained that the U. M. W. constitution barred Communists.

"The United Mine Workers of America is an American institution," Lewis said. "It has but one flag, and that is the American flag. . . . It will do as much or more to protect that flag as any cross-section of the American citizenship or anyone else who may proclaim their patriotic principles."

Police were asked to search for the prankster.

Green Comes to Defense of New Deal.

NEW YORK —(INS)— President William Green of the American Federation of Labor stood on the record today with a warm defense of the New Deal administration which he claimed had done more for labor in the last seven years than had ever been done before.

Green's pledge of loyalty to the Roosevelt administration, delivered at a dinner in honor of Thomas J. Lyons, newly elected president of the state federation of labor, was a reply to Wednesday's attack by John L. Lewis, CIO leader, who predicted President Roosevelt would go down to "ignominious defeat" if he sought a third term.

(Editor's Note: In a scathing attack on the National Labor Relations board in Washington yesterday, Green charged before the house investigating committee that the NLRB "committed all the crimes in the calendar" to favor the CIO over the A. F. of L.)

Without naming names, Green denounced Lewis and the CIO as "ingrates" and singers of a "song of hate."

Electrical Workers Revolt Against A. F. of L.

NEW YORK —(AP)—A revolt against the American Federation of Labor was reported spreading today among the 38,000 employees of Consolidated Edison company.

Two locals of the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, claiming to speak for 16,000 Consolidated employees, announced that they had voted to withdraw from the AFL and establish unaffiliated unions.

The revolt started in Local B-829, whose business manager, Patrick J. McGrath, charged that Local 3 of the IBEW, made up of electricians on regular contract jobs and not connected with the utility company, had been "muscling in" on work that should have gone to Consolidated Edison employees. He said that when B-829 men were out of work they could not get jobs under the jurisdiction of Local 3, and that Local 3 men had been going to homes of B-829 men when they were out of work and "terrorizing our women folk."

CITY OF FLINT NEARS U. S. PORT

placed a German prize crew in charge of the freighter. The prize crew, dodging allied warships, directed the Flint first to Tromsø, Norway, and then to the Russian arctic port of Murmansk. Ignoring the U. S. protests, the Russian officials allowed the Flint to remain at Murmansk six days and then sail again, still in charge of the prize crew.

The Flint was sailed down the Norwegian coast, hugging the shoreline and Norwegian territorial waters in an effort to run the British blockade and bring the craft safely into German waters.

This episode came to a sudden end, however, when the freighter was halted at the Haugesund Roadstead by Norwegian officials who interned the German prize crew and allowed the American crew to take charge again.

A long delay followed while U. S. Lines officials worked out plans for the Flint's return to the United States. Finally, after taking aboard a cargo of iron ore, the Flint left the Norwegian port of Narvik for Baltimore.

Lakeville

Walter Horn, student at Ohio State, spent the week-end with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. K. Horn.

Lakeville residents were grieved to learn of the death of Gus W. Sharr of Wooster. He is a brother of Mrs. Mary Crow and Miss Elizabeth Sharr of Lakeville.

John Tope received lacerations on his face Sunday while repairing the Pennsylvania railroad tracks at Millbrook, where 24 cars were derailed early Sunday morning. He was given hospital treatment.

Miss Ellen Hudson is convalescing from the grippe.

Mr. and Mrs. John Borden and two children of Loudonville moved Monday into the Lloyd Horn cottage in Lakeview park.

The Lakeville Ladies' Aid will meet Thursday evening, Feb. 1, in the church hall.

Fredericktown farmer related how famous medicine first relieved constipation; then a lot of troubles disappeared. Advises everyone to try it.

"It seems almost too good to be true when I stop to remember how much better I feel now than a few weeks ago," declared Mr. J. B. Strebby, prosperous farmer of Fredericktown, near Mansfield, to the Vendol Man in Central Drug Store just recently.

"When I began taking Vendol I had been constipated for years and this condition made me feel terrible at times in different ways. It kept my stomach so badly upset that most everything I ate would quickly turn sour, huge amounts of gas would build up and made me uncomfortable for hours. Often it felt like there was a lump in my throat which I could neither swallow nor throat out, a hot liquid would rill and burn up to my throat, and after going to bed I'd feel so miserable I'd lie awake for hours."

"I started on Vendol, and in a short while it has really done wonders for me. "In but a few days it started my bowels to working more thoroughly and completely than I'd had in years. Now, I enjoy hearty meals without a sign of sour stomach, gas, cramps and risings, 'heartburn' or choking feeling, and actually look forward to mealtime with pleasure. There is no more delay in getting off to sleep, and I awaken next morning feeling refreshed and rested."

"It is a pleasure to recommend such a good, reliable medicine as Vendol because I feel it can help so many other people."

If you who read this, are suffering from the same troubles due to the same causes described here, and will come to Central Drug Store, Cor. Main & 4th Sts., ask for me, the Vendol Man, and I will explain all about my great medicine which is made mostly from extracts of Roots and Herbs, and tell you honestly if I believe it will help you. Samples are free. Most all leading druggists sell Vendol.

Japs Back Italy on Anti-Comintern Pact. ROME —(INS)— With the support and collaboration of Japan, Italy has given support to a movement pact throughout the Balkan states, it was learned in diplomatic circles today.

The movement is not directed against the Soviet Union itself, it was learned, but against the spread of Communism and "Pan-Slavism" into the Balkans.

Well-informed circles indicated that Germany is interested in this action and is lending moral if not outright support to the plan.

Japan has taken the role of intermediary between Italy and the Balkan nations to prepare the groundwork. The plan is expected to reach fruition at the forthcoming conference of the Balkan entente nations — Turkey, Yugoslavia, Rumania and Greece—in Bucharest.

Eiji Amata, Japanese ambassador in Rome who for many years was the spokesman of the foreign office in Tokyo is now in Budapest, conferring with the Japanese envoys to Ankara, Belgrade, Bucharest and Athens. Before he left Rome he had a long discussion with Italian Foreign Minister Count Galeazzo Ciano.

Canadians Get Set to Test Record in War.

OTTAWA —(AP)—Political leaders set up campaign machinery today for the most hectic electioneering battle in 20 years as a result of the Dominion government's call for a general vote to put its war record up to the people.

In a swift-moving drama which surprised many members, parliament was dissolved late yesterday through an address from the throne read by Governor-General Lord Tweedsmuir, calling for an early "direct and unquestioned mandate from the people."

The earliest possible election date is March 26, since Canadian laws require an eight-week period between dissolution and election day. The cabinet was summoned to decide today if the March 26 date would be acceptable.

Prime Minister W. L. Mackenzie King announced in parliament that he was prepared to "allow the people of this country to say whom they want to administer the country" in view of recent attacks of Canada's war program.

"Political opponents who are seeking to undermine every effort that is put forward by this administration," were blamed by Mackenzie King for the necessity of election. Apparently he referred to Ontario Premier Mitchell Hepburn's attacks on alleged inefficiency in the Dominion government's prosecution of the war.

Hepburn a week ago told his provincial legislature that Canadian troops were ill-equipped and he pushed through a motion censuring the "little effort" made in the war by the Ottawa regime.

Claims Red-Nazi Military Alliance Would Peril U. S.

CLEVELAND —(AP)— An "actual military alliance" between Hitler and Stalin would place the United States on the brink of war, in the opinion of Dr. Harry F. Ward, for 20 years chairman of the American Civil Liberties union.

The Allies would flood this nation with propaganda urging another holy war to save God and civilization from atheist barbarians," said the New York seminary professor.

Dr. Ward, who also is chairman of the American League for Peace and Democracy, participated in the annual conference of the United Christian Council for Democracy, which concluded yesterday.

The conference recommended action against all arms increases by the United States, conscription of men in war time, secret foreign military alliances and any violation of the neutrality act. Also passed a proposal that the United States move to stop wars now in progress by calling on belligerents to state terms on which they would negotiate and lead in bringing neutral pressure on the belligerents to negotiate.

Boy Scouts Name Candidates for Municipal Election.

SHELBY — Candidates to run for the election of Boy Scouts to the municipal offices next month were selected last night at a primary election at First Methodist church. The Federalist and Nationalist political parties selected their candidates to run at the election Feb. 1. Some 40 scouts registered votes.

Successful candidates on the Federalist ticket were mayor, Richard Claes; finance director, Robert Sterling; police chief, Jimmie Petty; fire chief, Marty Luchansky; second ward councilman, Jack Robb, and third ward councilman, Earl Bollhoff. Donald Zeiters and Bruno Caporini tied with the same number of votes for first ward councilman.

Candidates that will represent the Nationalist party at the election are David Lewis, mayor; director of law, Dudley Lewis; director of utilities, James Herbert; director of public service, Marlen Yarnan; police chief, Billy Forquer; fire chief, Floyd Lloyd; first ward councilman, Richard Chew; second ward councilman, Kenneth Troxell and third ward councilman, Don Monn.

WHY VITAMIN C?

Vitamin C prevents scurvy—the deficiency disease which years ago plagued those who sailed the seven seas. Scurvy in severe form is rarely seen today, but a moderate deficiency of vitamin C (Ascorbic Acid) often gives rise to digestive disturbances, faulty tooth structure, irritability, loss of weight and increased tendency to lowered resistance. In addition, it is probable that other important functions of vitamin C will be recognized in the future—particularly in relation to calcium metabolism, blood formation and nerve functioning.

Widespread damage to crops from the abnormal cold was reported today from Illinois and the southern states. Crop experts at the University of Illinois said that state's $2,000,000 peach crop probably has been destroyed by the prolonged cold which killed the dormant buds.

From the Carolinas to Florida and westward along the Gulf coast, vegetable and fruit crops were damaged heavily by freezing weather. The temperature was only four above freezing at Miami, Fla., again today and Atlanta, Ga., had four above zero, one of the lowest temperatures ever recorded there.

The weatherman said there will be snow flurries and continued cold weather tonight and Saturday in Ohio, with slowly rising temperature due Sunday and Monday.

NUPTIAL SHOWERS AT PEAK IN MANSFIELD

Mrs. Robert Yarger, Mrs. Richard Darling, Miss Vivian Miller, Mrs. Nelson Brooks, Miss Katherine Albers Feted.

WARMER with scattered showers might have been the weather prediction last night, if our faithful weatherman wanted to keep the climate in tune with the social world. For despite the snow Mansfielders attended more post and pre-nuptial showers Thursday than they have in many weeks.

There were 20 guests at the miscellaneous shower given by Mrs. Henry McKee, 737 West Fourth street, in honor of Mrs. Richard Darling, the former Miss Anna Mae Mowry. Games were played, and kitchen utensil prizes were awarded to the guest of honor, Miss Emma Heichel was also awarded a prize.

Luncheon was served by the hostess, and pink and white appointments were used. Mrs. Darling was presented with a gift of furniture by the hostess, Mrs. William Cromwell. Crestline was a guest.

Guests at the party given for Mrs. Robert Yarger, the former Miss Lois Pike, made a recipe file for the bride. The Misses Margaret and Jane Rizer, Ruth avenue, were hostesses to 10 guests.

Refreshments were served at a table centered with a mixed bouquet of pastel flowers and pink and blue tapers. Each place was marked with an individual favor, and tiny pink and blue umbrellas. A similar favor concealed in the guest of honor's dessert disclosed the hiding place of a large umbrella from which a shower of kitchen gifts was suspended. The hostesses presented Mrs. Yarger with a wedding gift.

The first in a series of post-nuptial parties honoring Mrs. Nelson Brooks was given yesterday evening at the home of Miss Emily Cox on West Third street. Miss Doris Goodenough, Miss Gerry Locke and Mrs. Robert Oberlin were the associate hostesses. Mrs. Brooks, whose marriage was announced just a few weeks ago, was Miss Catherine Forshee before her marriage in Newport, Ky., on Oct. 27, 1939.

Bridge was the diversion at three tables, and prizes were won by the Misses Maxine Coffman and Kay Baker. Notes, inside balloons which were attached to the ceiling, directed the honoree to the hiding place of the shower gifts from the guests. These gifts were for the kitchen and pantry shelf, and the hostesses presented Mrs. Brooks with a complete set of aluminum kitchenware.

Luncheon was served, buffet style, at the close of the evening. Mrs. Brooks and her mother, Mrs. Frank Forshee, presided at the long table, which was centered with a bouquet of sweetpeas.

Mrs. Charles McMullen and Miss Winifred Van Derau entertained with a dessert-bridge party in honor of Miss Vivian Miller yesterday evening at the McMullen home on Sturges avenue. Miss Miller, who is the bride-elect of William Mosey, and the hostesses are members of Beta chapter of Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority.

Wednesday evening Mrs. Henry K. Boughton, and her daughter, Miss Ruth Boughton, 39 Boughton avenue, entertained with four tables of bridge in honor of Mrs. Robert Boughton, the former Miss Evelyn Richard. A shower of kitchen gifts was arranged on a table under a Japanese parasol.

Prizes were presented to Miss Garnet Karl and Miss Ruth Lister, and they gave their awards to the bride. Small baskets of sweet peas and pink and white appointments were used on the small tables when luncheon was served.

University Women To Dance at Hotel Tomorrow Night

All arrangements for the annual benefit guest dance of the American Association of University women have been completed, according to an announcement made this morning by Mrs. Gordon Colby, general chairman. The dance will be held tomorrow evening at the Mansfield-Leland hotel between the hours of 10 p. m. and 1 a. m. Music will be supplied by Ira Metcalf and his orchestra. A door prize, and a prize for early arrivals at the dance will be given, the committee disclosed today.

Those in charge of the semi-formal function are Mrs. Colby; Miss Frances E. Gensley, orchestra; Miss Marianne Springer, Mrs. Nicholas White, Mrs. Homer Swift, Mrs. Harry Knox, Mrs. Walter Mickey, Miss Helen McCleary, Mrs. Jack Berno, Mrs. L. C. Baumgardner, and Miss Mary Ward, tickets and programs.

CLASS MEETS.

Members of the Fellowship class of the Evangelical Congregational church met with Mrs. Daniel Stucky, 404 Ohio street, for games and contests last night. The hostess served refreshments.

DR. EVANS SPEAKS AT FEDERATION MEETING

Tells Women Why He Likes America; Relates Amusing Stories; Paul Le Cler Scheduled for February Program.

A LIGHT touch, and charming manner served to make members of the Mansfield Federation of Women disregard the two below zero temperature yesterday morning when Dr. Arthur Walwyn Evans spoke at the Ohio theater on "What America Means to Me." The informality of the talk, which was heavily interspersed with anecdotes, stories about the British pronunciation and sense of humor, and personal experiences, amused and entertained the listeners.

Dr. Evans, who was born at Wrexham, North Wales, makes his home in New York and is a citizen of the United States. He received his education in England and Scotland, and has been on the lecture platform for five years. He told briefly, yesterday, of William Gladstone, David Lloyd George, and Queen Victoria, but his chief appeal was in the amusing stories he told.

"Every race, every nation, has made contributions to the United States," he pointed out when he explained that the important thing about America is not her democracy, but her spirit of fraternity, the general feeling of brotherhood.

Evans minimized the race purity theory, agreeing with the biologists, that racial purity leads eventually to decadence. By way of conclusion he spoke of the nationalistic characteristics of various peoples which have contributed greatly to our civilization. The conservatism of the Scotsman, the humor of the Irish, the scientific ability of the Germans and the Jews.

Mrs. Lester Redding, president of the Federation, introduced the speaker. Luncheon was served following the lecture at the Women's Club.

NAME DANCE COMMITTEE.

Members of Delta Sigma Zeta appointed committees for their spring dance at the meeting which was held with Miss Helen Hartman, Marion avenue, Wednesday evening. Miss Melena Miller and Miss Jean Van Derau are on the orchestra committee, and the Misses Frances Brown, Marjorie Hale and Ruth Preston are on the place committee. Plans also were discussed for a rummage sale. The girls in the club graduating this month were presented with gifts after which refreshments were served.

Informally Speaking...

By MARIANNE

THIS is an exciting day in the J. E. Thompson household on Lexington avenue, because Martha Thompson is arriving home from Urbana, where she's been teaching physical education and science in the high school for the past three years. . . . Martha will assume her duties teaching physical education at the new John Simpson Junior high, which opens Monday. . . . In fact, this will be Martha's first opportunity to live at home with her parents in the last seven years—as she attended Mt. Union college four years and went to Urbana following her graduation there. . . . She was a member of Delta Delta Delta sorority and the Women's Athletic association while at the school.

Looks like this is an important day for lots of folks—Mr. and Mrs. O. F. Garver (with their daughter and grandson, Mrs. Howard Pierce and Jackie) went to Portsmouth to spend the week-end with another daughter, Mrs. Wayne Paulson—and they'll get the first glimpse of the newest member of the family, the Paulsons' baby daughter, Patricia Ann. . . . They'll be back late Sunday night, as Mrs. Pierce and Jackie are leaving early Monday morning for Elmira, N. Y., where they'll make their home—Mr. Pierce recently accepted a position on the staff of the Star-Gazette there.

BY MAIL AND TELEPHONE: Just had a card from the Jacob Kinkels, saying that they're enjoying a vacation at the Seaside hotel in Atlantic City, N. J. . . . Ralph Arlin came home the other evening to surprise his parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Arlin. . . . He finished up his first semester exams at Purdue university quite early, and so he's planning to vacation here until next Tuesday. . . . Incidentally, Ralph's sporting an Alpha Tau Omega pledge pin now too.

LITTLE girls are made of sugar and spice," and the gift bearing of William Mosey) at a pantry shelf shower the other evening, really proved it. . . . It was a doll made from nothing more than a sack of sugar, decked out in a ruffled crown paper dress, with a painted face and curls of tan yarn tied with red bows. . . . The sugar "doll's" skirt concealed a box filled with a variety of spices for the kitchen cupboard shelf. . . . Dorothy's mother, Mrs. C. A. Crawford, made the doll.

CUPID'S DARTS: Even though the month of valentines, hearts and flowers hasn't arrived yet, little of Dan Cupid is busy at work, and he's presented concrete evidence in a beautiful diamond engagement ring—Judy Palmer's wearing it, a gift from Harry Weinland.

AND SPEAKING of appropriate tags on party gifts, as we were a moment ago, the one that the teachers at Hedges Junior high put on a chair which they presented as a farewell to Glenn G. Rohleder, said "from the girls you left behind you." . . . Mr. Rohleder, you know, is leaving the principalship of Hedges school to take over those duties at the new Johnny Appleseed Junior high on Monday, and the farewell party was a surprise at his home the other evening.

VACATION BOUND: M. Dale Ward left this week for an indefinite stay at Miami, Fla. . . . A feature of his visit will be a ten-day trip on Paul Tappan's sail boat off the coast of the sunshine state (providing the sunshine stays and this cold wave doesn't travel any farther south than it has to date). . . . It really seems hard to escape from snow and freezing temperatures no matter where you go just now. . . . Dick Bowden drove out to California this week and, according to a card mailed en route, he ran into a snowstorm in the southern part of Arkansas. . . . He'll return by train in about two weeks. . . . Mr. and Mrs. John L. Connors and Lucile Kearns went to Chicago, Ill., yesterday for a ten-day visit—the Windy City was formerly Mrs. Connors' home, so she's planning to visit with relatives and renew old friendships while there. . . . In fact it seems that Chicago is more than popular with Mansfielders these days—Mr. and Mrs. Dwight A. McCullough are enjoining for that city tonight, and they'll be joined by Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Pryor on Sunday.

Sir Knights Entertain With Annual Function

Some 70 Knights and their ladies danced Tuesday evening at the Masonic temple when the annual Templar ball was given by the Mansfield Commandery No. 21, Knights Templar in honor of Commander Emeritus Sir Edward L. Becker. Nels Blocker furnished the music from 8 to 12 o'clock, and John D. Van Cura, H. K. Day, A. D. Greene, A. F. Porter, E. B. Davis, and O. F. Garver were in charge of the arrangements. Entertainment was presented by Betty Lou Spies, Eddie Becker, Vivian Walter and Alice Dillon. Refreshments were served, and the Sir Knights were attired in full regalia for the affair.

Re-Elect Council Officers At Dinner Attended by 60

ALL BUT one of the officers of the Republican Women's council were re-elected yesterday when 60 members and guests met at North Lake park pavilion for a covered-dish dinner. The long tables were decorated with bowls of flowers, and each place was marked with a corsage made by Mrs. Ralph Davis, member of the arrangements committee.

The officers re-named were Mrs. Carl Spangler, president; Mrs. Pearl Bissman, vice-president, and Mrs. Florence Ackerman, secretary. Mrs. D. L. Maxwell is the new treasurer. Mrs. Spangler re-appointed all her committee chairmen. They are Mrs. Philip Wolfe, program; Mrs. Eleanor Stone Smith, music; Mrs. R. O. Darling, floral; Mrs. James LeMunyon, social, and Mrs. Martha Martin, publicity.

During the meeting, which was conducted by Mrs. Spangler, Mrs. Claude Ewing, accompanied by Mrs. Elsie Ireland, sang two numbers. Mrs. McGregor, wife of J. Harry McGregor, majority leader in the state house of representatives, spoke briefly and the yearly reports were given.

Church Class Meets With Joan Linkhart

There were nine members and one guest, Miss Betty Flegel, present for a meeting of the Buds of Promise Sunday school class of the South Main Street Evangelical church last evening at the home of Miss Joan Linkhart on South Main street.

Games and contests were played during the social hour, with score prizes going to the Misses Margaret Briner and Beverly Hershey. Valentine appointments and candles decorated the long table when luncheon was served after the games. The date of the February meeting, with Miss Briner on Buckingham street, will be announced later.

Robert Burns Dinner Held by Scottish Lodge

The annual Robert Burns celebration was held last night by members of the Daughters of Scotland lodge, their families and guests at the North Lake park pavilion. A covered-dish dinner was served at long tables decorated with yellow chrysanthemums, jonquils and cyclamen. The main table was draped with the lodge flag. Mrs. T. L. Wilson and Mrs. Wilson McLean, assisted by members of the lodge, were in charge of arrangements.

James Smith, Galion, spoke on Burns, the Scottish national poet, and songs were sung by Mr. and Mrs. William Jackson, William Ferguson and Wilson McLean. Two plays were presented with Mr. Ferguson, Mr. McLean, Miss Vivian Applin, Mrs. Jack Southall, Mrs. Arthur Schuler, Miss Mary McCartney, Mrs. T. C. Gregg, Miss Margaret MacLean and Mrs. Thomas McCartney.

Mrs. McKnight Has Bridge for Sorority

Bridge was in play at three tables yesterday evening, when Mrs. Jack McKnight entertained members of Gamma chapter Gamma Gamma Gamma sorority, and one guest, Mrs. Jack Anthony. Miss Eileen Logan, Mrs. James E. Henderson and Mrs. Joseph Kemp were the associate hostesses.

Mrs. Riley E. Frush was recipient of high score in the bridge games. Luncheon was served at one long table, set with crystal and decorated with red roses. The regular monthly business meeting will be held in the club rooms on North Main street next Thursday evening.

ENTERTAINS CIRCLE

There were 15 members and guests of Circle One of the Park Avenue Baptist church present at the home of Mrs. Charles Abele, 96 West Fourth street yesterday. Mrs. William Kissel conducted the meeting, and Mrs. Charles Lake led the devotions. Mrs. Lake, Mapleade avenue, will entertain for the February meeting, the date of which has not yet been set.

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"Will you not come over to the window-seat in the hall?" I asked. "I am afraid this will be a longer discussion than you anticipate."

He looked at me sharply, but made no comment, apparently giving his whole attention to piloting me carefully along the corridor to the window-seat overlooking the garden. When we were once seated, however, he made a crisp inquiry.

"You say this may be a long discussion," he said. "What can the child possibly want?" I smiled cryptically.

"It is neither a request to talk to a matinee idol, nor to witness a rehearsal," I told him, quoting his own theory of Olina's request for some unknown "favor."

"Then what?" He came as near barking the question as his ingrained courtesy would permit. "Olina wishes to have a role in my play," I said.

"A role in your play?" he echoed. "Has the child gone crazy?" "No, she appeared perfectly sane when she talked to me about it," I replied demurely.

"Does her mother know about it?"

"I believe Olina means to tell her about it this afternoon," I replied, carefully skirting the fact that Olga already had discussed the plan and approved it.

"Her mother never will consent to her appearance in public even if I could give her a role," he said, with masculine relief at being able to throw off on feminine shoulders the responsibility of refusing a request.

"Of course I do not know that," I said, mendaciously, "but I really do not believe she could possibly object to the particular request Olina has made."

He stared at me in sudden unabashed amazement.

"You talk as though this might be a possible request," he said. "God knows, in my present mood I would cut off a limb to give the child happiness, but I cannot break faith with my public—never have—and to admit a rank amateur to a part in one of my productions—why, it would be treason!"

His eyes searched my face again.

"There is something behind this which I do not understand," he said at last. "May I beg that you explain things more fully?"

There was the familiar note of authority in his voice now, but I took my time in answering.

"I shall be very glad to explain what Olina wishes," I said, "and strange as it may seem, I believe it is something that you can grant."

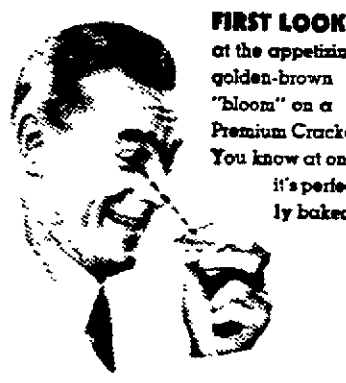

His face was distinctly skeptical, his voice more so.

"I should be very glad to believe that," he said, "and you know that I lean most heavily upon your judgment, but this, frankly—"

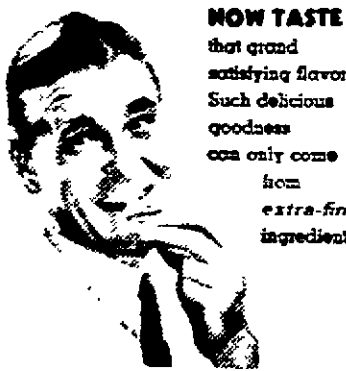

"Please wait until you hear what it is," I said, and briefly out-

Activities of Social Clubs

ONE new member, Mrs. Gerald Smith, was welcomed into membership in the Revelers club yesterday when Mrs. Howard Heichel, 198 Penn avenue, entertained. Miss Ann Gist was a guest of the group. Pinochle was played at two tables, with Mrs. Lewis Brauchler and Miss Gist winning the prizes. Mrs. Brauchler, 241 Sycamore street, will entertain Feb. 8. It was decided yesterday that the club would change the meeting time from afternoon to evening beginning with the next session. Green and white appointments were used when the hostess served refreshments at the close of the session.

Members of the Needlecraft club gathered at the home of Mrs. E. J. Hartnett, 232 South Mulberry street, for a meeting yesterday afternoon. Contests were played during the social hour, which followed a short business session, conducted by Mrs. Harry Balliet. Prizes in the games were awarded to Mrs. Albert Bowersock and Mrs. Balliet, and the hostess then served refreshments. Mrs. John Schnorr has invited the club to her home, 19 Swanger avenue, for the next meeting, Feb. 8.

Pinochle was the diversion at two tables yesterday afternoon, when Mrs. L. L. Linkhart was hostess to member of the Tip-Top club at her home on South Main street. Mrs. C. M. Ortman and Mrs. C. J. Baumberger were guests of the club for the day. Prize winners in the games were Mrs. William Gresmer, Mrs. Baumberger and Mrs. H. F. Sullivan. Mrs. Gresmer will have the meeting of Feb. 8 at her home on Louise avenue.

Mrs. Benedict Saprano, Longview avenue, was hostess to members of the Italian Social club last night. Cards were played, and prizes awarded to Miss Violet Digregoria, Miss Ann Digregoria and Miss Mary Desanze. The next meeting will be Feb. 8 with Mrs. James Vilella, Bowman street.

A dinner party was an event of yesterday noon for members of the Link club at the home of Mrs. W. C. Daily, 90 West Second street. Pink and green appointments decorated the table. Card games were played during the afternoon, and prizes were won by Mrs. Herman Bookwalter, Mrs. David Palmer and Mrs. Charles Andrews. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Faust were guests of the afternoon. Mrs. Andrews will have the next meeting, Feb. 29, at her home, 24 Prospect street.

KNOT COMFORTS.

Members of the Woodville Social club met yesterday at the home of Mrs. Ralph Stimen, Woodville road, for an all-day meeting. The members knotted five comforts. A chicken dinner was served at noon, and a contest was the afternoon's diversion. Mrs. William Beam won the prize. The next meeting will be Feb. 2 with Mrs. W. F. Mattern, Woodville road.

lined Olina's wish to play a harp in one scene of the play, with but a few words to speak, and of my opinion that the innovation would enhance the effectiveness of the scene.

"By all the gods of the drama!" he said, at last. "I believe you have something there."

"The Authority on Authorities"

COUNT EACH FOR ONE FREQUENTLY there will be two intermediate honors out against you in different suits, either of which may possibly get caught in a finesse. If you are in a contract about as high as your cards justify, or higher, and the opponents have not doubled you, the chances are that those two cards are not in the same hand. So in the play it is sound to finesse against one opponent for one of those honors and then count on finding the other in the hand of the fellow who did not have the first one.

Entertains Guest at Meeting of Circle 2

Mrs. George H. Geyer of Xenia was a guest at a meeting of Circle Two of the Park Avenue Baptist church yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Harold Neese, 142 Parkwood boulevard. There were 12 members present for the meeting, which was conducted by Mrs. Charles Swisher, who also gave the devotional readings.

When refreshments were served during the social hour, Mrs. K. P. Curl and Mrs. Geyer presided at the table, which was decorated with pink and blue appointments. The next regular circle meeting will be a dollar experience social on Feb. 29, with the place to be announced later.

Sewing Circle Members Have All-Day Session

Members of St. Peter's Sewing circle had an all-day meeting and luncheon yesterday at the home of Mrs. J. F. Ehalt, 67 Brinkerhoff avenue. Mrs. George Stuhl-dreher and Mrs. C. D. Sherrard were the associate hostesses. Sewing was done, and cards played. The winners were Mrs. Frank Loy-kovich and Mrs. Arthur Glatkic. The next meeting will be held Feb. 8 with Mrs. P. J. Kelley, West Third street. Mrs. Vincent Montgomery and Miss Hortense Perl will be the associate hostesses.

HAVE DINNER.

A covered-dish dinner was served at noon yesterday to members of the Women's Aid to the Pennsylvania railroad when Mrs. E. W. High, 173 West Second street, entertained. After the brief business, contests were held and Mrs. C. R. Ladd and Mrs. Franklin Haupt were awarded the prizes. Mrs. J. E. Young, 122 Glenwood boulevard, will entertain the aid Feb. 22.

HOSTESS TO CLUB.

Mrs. O. O. Brenner, 764 West Fourth street, opened her home yesterday to 12 members of the Mary-Martha Bible club. Devotions were led by Mrs. J. D. Wilcox, and Mrs. D. W. Cummins was in charge of the study. The next meeting will be held Feb. 8 with Mrs. V. D. Coe, 35 Brickman avenue.

NAME OFFICERS.

Officers of the newly formed Western Reserve University Alumnae association were announced today. Mrs. Benjamin Esgar, Cook road, who was hostess for the organization meeting, is the president. Her officers include Miss Lois MacKellar, secretary, and Mrs. Donald Horton, program chairman.

Consequently to the second trick, Mr. Mason led the club 5 and finessed the 10 successfully, then the diamond J and 10 equally successfully, followed by the club 9, which West took with the A. The rest was easy. He got two tricks in spades, three in hearts, four in diamonds and three in clubs, for a total of twelve and a top score.

HOROSCOPE

For Saturday, January 27.

The planetary configurations for this day may be interpreted as unusually propitious, not only for a day of thrilling and breath-taking experiences, but also for an unexpected opportunity for great progress and prosperity. This may involve a complete about-face in objectives, associates and environs. It is a time for branching out, with audacity and initiative, to reach for the rewards and merits of past efforts in new pastures. Pastimes are not to be neglected, since tokens of romance fill the air.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a year of sudden, surprising and possibly dramatic adventures in which romance has little part. A complete and unforeseen change of plans and aims may be required, with new fields of operation and friends combining to bring about promotion and progress as a climax to long-concentrated effort and steadfastness.

A child born on this day may be original, adventurous and audacious. Creative art in music or letters may distinguish it.

REVEALS BORAH WAS READY TO BACK WHEELER

Close Friend, Writer Says Senator Planned to Bolt Republican Party.

(Editor's Note: The late Senator Borah was a Republican throughout his life, but he planned to bolt the party this year if his own choice for the presidency—a famous Democrat—was nominated. What those plans were is disclosed for the first time in the following article, the sixth in a series by Borah's close friend, William K. Hutchinson—International News Service.)

By WILLIAM K. HUTCHINSON
WASHINGTON—William Edgar Borah, on the day of his death, had a personal candidate for the presidency in next November's elections and was ready to bolt his own party for the first time.

His favorite to succeed President Roosevelt in the White House was Senator Burton K. Wheeler, Liberal Democrat from Montana. If he had lived, he would have used all his political sagacity to secure Wheeler's nomination by the Democrats, then crossed party lines for the first time in his life and supported Wheeler to the limits of his ability over any Republican nominee in the presidential campaign.

Borah believed President Roosevelt plans on retiring at the end of his present term. Personally opposed to a third term, Borah would have fought Mr. Roosevelt on that issue. On the other hand, if the Democrats nominated Wheeler, Borah would have supported him.

Borah hated the party system. He called it the "vice of democracy." He believed the Republican party had little chance of success in November. He felt it had lost the allegiance of the common people. He believed this as long ago as 1935 and died without losing the conviction.

Would Back Wheeler.
A month ago, I asked him whether he had yet decided on his candidate for president. We had been talking often of Republican possibilities. His surprising reply was:

"If Burt Wheeler is nominated by the Democrats, I will support him."

"Will you make speeches for him?"

"Anything he wants me to do."

"Let me write that now?"
"No, not yet. It isn't the time. If you write it now, it may make the president mad. He got mad at me when they said I was naming his supreme court justices for him. And if they said I was trying to make him nominate Wheeler, he might fight it."

"Who are they?"

"Those scuttled-brained new dealers around him, who have no political sense, but only a lust for power."

"Would Wheeler win, if nominated?"

"He'd sweep the country. He's a real liberal, not a phoney one. He has courage, integrity, convictions and the ability to lead. He's really able. Look how he runs that committee of his when he's dealing with one of the toughest problems in the country today—the future of our railroads. Why, he's won the admiration of both the bankers and the railroad workers alike. Who else could do that?"

"His nomination would be popular too. He's from the west, born in Massachusetts and went to school in Michigan. He belongs to all sections of the country. He's strong with labor and the farmers. It would be the smart thing for the Democrats to do but they aren't always smart."

"Why not let me write it?"

"No—no. You're too impetuous—a little later on it might help Wheeler."

"Well, can I tell a few Democrats?"

"Yes, use your own judgment."

I recalled that in the supreme court fight, Borah frequently said the opposition would win the battle if Wheeler would accept the leadership. At that time, he reminded me that he had been chairman of a senate committee which investigated charges against Wheeler following the Daugherty inquiry. He told me he had found Wheeler "clean, decent and honorable and I said so in my report to the senate."

Offered To Defend Him.
"Why," he added, "I even offered to go out to Montana, when he was indicted, and help Tom Walsh defend him."

Borah often confounded a third term but he never thought Mr. Roosevelt would seek it. He had enjoyed the efforts made to draw out the president on the 1940 campaign. He frequently told me:

"The president's too damn smart to fall for a trick like that. The minute he talks, he'll begin to lose power. But put this in your cap. He isn't going to run for a third term."

Borah hated the party system in the summer of 1938, he told me.

"The party system is the vice. You can't vote your convictions. You must give up your convictions to party decisions."

"There was a cabal to impeach Johnson (President Andrew Johnson). He was saved by seven Republicans, who voted their own convictions and defied the party decision. That party would not forgive that and pursued those seven men into private life and one of them even to the grave. They followed him into New Mexico and worried him to death. There ought to be a monument erected to those seven senators, because they saved the government of the United States just as much as the outcome of the battle of Gettysburg."

I suggested perhaps the election of an independent as president would change the situation.

"No," he replied. "It's not Roosevelt. It's the damn party system itself. I have always been in trouble myself. T. R. (Theodore Roosevelt) used to lambast me because I would not yield my personal convictions to his party decisions. Taft even took me off the White House social list."

"What can you do about it?"

"We must destroy the idea that a party has the right to take away a man's convictions when he joins the party. The party system should be founded on the system that the government is founded upon—merely a modus operandi for putting into effect the opinions of a majority of the people."

Then after a pause, he added:

"Thank God there is so much rebellion. It's just what saves the government."

Borah believed for some years that the Republicans cannot return to power unless they nominate a real liberal. In April, 1935, he said to me:

"My view is that there must be a complete and bonafide reorganization of our party and upon that there can be no compromise if we expect to make any showing in 1936—or 1940—or ever."

In May, 1939, he said to me:

"The Republican party lost power when it lost the support of that group of our citizens who were called the common people by Lincoln—farmers, workers, middle-class business men—the so-called masses of our people."

"Now if we are to win in 1940, we must have a candidate who can command the confidence and respect of the common people. There is no one out in front now who can do it. If any of them is nominated against Roosevelt or anybody Roosevelt supports, he will be defeated. The trouble with them is that they will run to big business the minute they are elected and the people know that, so the people will not elect them."

And the last political statement I heard from Borah, on his last day in the senate, was this:

"Say, young man, you get around a lot. Jim Farley sent a man up to see me to learn whether I would support Wheeler for president."

"What did you tell him?"
"That I would."

BITTEN BY DOGS

Boy, 13, Attacked by 2 Animals at School Playground.

James Thompson, 13, son of Mr. and Mrs. James L. Thompson, 219 Newman street, was suffering from a severe laceration of the leg, inflicted yesterday when he was attacked by two dogs while playing at the Newman school playground.

The animals were driven off by a passerby and the boy taken to a physician where the wounds were dressed. Police said the dogs were owned by Maurice Newsome, 555 Newsome to tie up the animals and to make arrangements with the boy's parents for payment of medical bills.

Pack Rat 'Buys' Watches, Trinkets With Pine Cones

WORCESTER, Mass.—(INS)—

A rat from the Black Hills of South Dakota, which pilfers watches, buttons or any loose object small enough to carry but always returns later to replace it with something else, has been on display at the Union Agricultural meetings.

Usually the pilfering pack rat returns with a pine cone or a few twigs. He always gets the best of the bargain.

The rodent display was brought by John N. Hamlet, of Portland, Me., formerly of the Black Hills, now with the federal biological survey.

Hamlet said he lost three watches to pack rats when he was living in Dakota.

"The pack rat, like some men, prefers darkness because his deeds are evil," said Hamlet. "He sneaks in while you are asleep. In return for my watches I got a pine cone and a few twigs." Hamlet, in studying the pack rats, discovered that the rodents have a signal system, warning each other of danger. They tap with their feet.

BUYRUS—Milton Gossman, who was injured when his car skidded on the highway Sunday, has been dismissed from City hospital. Gossman suffered a slight concussion in the accident.

NEED CHORINES

ROME—(INS)—The war has caused a shortage of chorus girls in Italy. The reason is that most of the girls who danced and sang in Italian revues were English. At the outbreak of hostilities those who were in Italy hurried home and others who had been engaged for forthcoming productions will now be unable to take part in them.

Farm Official Hits AAA, Holds It Can't Solve Problem

TELLS BUREAU 'ARISTOCRATS' HEAD PROGRAM

350 Richland Farmers Attend Session, Hear 1939 Co-op Sales Hit $578,000.

Criticizing the federal farm program as an attempt to destroy farm surpluses that are only imaginary, E. J. Bath, Ohio Farm Bureau legislative agent, told 350 Richland county farm residents yesterday that "the only way to prosperity is through an improved living standard and a better distribution of farm produce."

Bath was the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Richland County Farm Bureau Cooperative association in the First Methodist church.

"There can be no farm surpluses as long as millions of people are hungry and need more clothing, shelter, and luxuries," he said. "If a man from Mars should come to the earth and see the suffering in the midst of plenty, he would think he got into an insane asylum."

Asserting that the farm program is in the hands of too many "aristocrats of agriculture," Bath added that "the AAA program is not the answer to our problem, but it will have to do until we get the solution worked out."

He said the "aristocrats" are those who have made so much money in other businesses that they can lose what they made in agriculture and still get along.

Admits Working For AAA.

"I went to Washington and worked for the AAA program, but I had to hold my nose when I did it and I still do," he said.

The AAA program pays farmers for limiting their crop production and using land building practices.

"We need to re-define the American way, keeping the valuable things in it and replacing those that have permitted us to economic difficulties. It should be re-made for all the American people and not for a select group," he declared.

"One solution to the farm problem is in consumer approach, taking the product direct to the market without so much expenditure for handling by the middle man. Another is in farm organization such as the farm bureau which requires work and time but pays dividends in results," he said.

Vance Clever, manager of the county farm bureau cooperative, reported that the organization had sales last year amounting to $578,587 and showed a profit of $11,985, approximately $2,000 more than in 1938.

Major items contributing to the sales volume were feed and grain, $186,950; livestock and poultry, $110,000; gasoline, $86,000 and fertilizer, $54,600.

The county cooperative has 36 employees who were paid $38,839 in wages last year, Clever said.

The cooperative has more than 1,300 members, largest of any county in Ohio, while 997 farmers own stock in the organization.

Two Directors Chosen.

G. H. Culler of Monroe township and George A. Mentzer of Troy township were elected directors of the cooperative association at the meeting yesterday. Culler was re-elected and Mentzer will succeed C. C. Till who was president in the past year and presided at the meeting. Officers will be elected Monday night.

Members voted to change the annual meeting date to the third Thursday in February, three weeks later than this year.

County Agent George B. Gandy outlined the work of the Ohio State university extension department and discussed the "land use" program in the county.

Music was provided by Misses Eileen and Joan Turner and a male quartet of farm bureau members.

Claim Congress Set to Avoid Tax Increase

Up and Down THE STREET

At least it's warm in Mexico City, county commissioners learned today from E. J. Chamberlain, Olivesburg merchant, who is vacationing in Mexico. Commissioners were a bit envious as they read Chamberlain's card, saying "It's nice and warm down here."

The traveling Olivesburg said he was going to a bull fight and was having a general good time.

Pete Hockscheid, former Mansfielder who now resides in Denver, Colo., and who plans to come home next summer on a visit, sends The News-Journal a story of cold weather that appeared in a Denver paper. A man near Colorado Springs says that the weather at his ranch is colder than Helsinki—16 degrees below zero, and says that while milking the cow the milk froze between the cow and the pail and that sticks of frozen milk corded up in the bucket. The man vouches for the truthfulness of the story but there are some who believe he is trying to make Louell Thomas' Tail Story club.

World war veterans of the Luther Swigart chapter, Rainbow Association, will meet at 7 p. m. Saturday at the American Legion home and go in a body to see "The Fighting 69th" at the Ohio theater. The picture tells the story of the "fighting Irish" of New York City who made up the 16th regiment of the Rainbow division.

Most of the Mansfield veterans were in the 16th regiment, which was brigaded with the New York outfit. They were together at Chateau-Thierry, Meuse-Argonne, St. Mihiel and through the days of occupation in Germany after the war.

Earl Massa, one of the Mansfield Rainbow men, was asked if the 16th had any part in the picture. "Certainly not," he said, "there aren't any women in this picture—and that's not the story of the 16th."

Johnny Applesseed junior high doesn't open until next week and naturally hasn't had much athletic teams and, of course, no victories or trophies, but it has a trophy case, probably one of the finest in any city school. It is not a case of "counting the chickens before they're hatched," school board members explain. "We just want to be prepared," they say. The glass-enclosed case is at the gymnasium entrance.

Reformatory Fugitive Caught, Brought Back.

An Ohio State reformatory inmate who escaped from the farm dormitory seven years ago was back at the institution today following his return from New Bethlehem, Pa., by reformatory guards.

Supt. Arthur L. Glatke identified the fugitive as Harry Howell, 28, who fled in 1933 after serving little more than a year of a one to 15 year term for burglary. He was sentenced from Paulding county Jan. 16, 1932.

Glatke said Howell would be required to serve additional time as penalty for his escape.

ROGERS SECOND IN SENATE RACE

G. O. P. Incumbent Will Seek Re-election; District to Name 2 Senators.

P. H. Rogers of Grafton, state senator from the 27-29th district, which embraces Richland county, today announced that he will be a candidate for renomination in the Republican primary in May.

He is the second to announce for the senate. Joseph Jameson, former Lorain postmaster, came out as a candidate on the Republican ticket several weeks ago.

For the first time in 20 years this district, which is made up of Richland, Ashland, Medina and Lorain counties, will elect two senators this year. The district has not had two men in the senate since Henry Endly of Mansfield, and J. F. Burke, former Lorain county publisher, were elected.

The second senator is dependent upon population and the proportioning of districts after each national census. After the 1930 census the proportioning of population set up a figure of 189,905 residents to a district in order to have one senator.

Whatever fraction of that figure remains over at each election is added up and when another 189,905 is reached, the district may elect another senator. The total population of the 27-29th district in the federal census was 231,652, which left 41,747 over the required number. This amount is added at each election and it took five elections, or ten years, to reach the required figure.

This year also gives several other districts additional senators with the result that a total of 36 senators will be elected this year, the largest senatorial body ever to sit in the state assembly.

Rogers served 10 years in the lower house as the representative from Lorain county, and was elected to the state senate in 1939. He has been a member of the finance committee of the house and senate.

ASKS PUBLIC FOR MILLION TO KEEP WOLF FROM OPERA'S DOOR

(By United Press)
NEW YORK—The Metropolitan Opera association appealed to the public today for $1,000,000 to keep the wolf from the most celebrated stage door in America, offering to admit the public to the "diamond horseshoe" if it saved the opera.

The association, producer of the operas decided to buy the opera house from the Metropolitan Opera and Real Estate company, a group of 35 millionaires and near millionaires whose ancestors built the place 56 years ago.

The real estate holders, each of whom paid $4,500 annual assessments for one of the 35 parterre boxes comprising the "horseshoe" had fallen behind in their payments and the place was threatening to go for taxes.

They had, through almost two generations, preserved the "horseshoe" exclusiveness by dictating who might sit there. But with the passing of the years, more than half the boxes, representing stock in the company, had gone into the hands of estates and estates cannot attend the opera.

The sale price agreed upon was $1,970,000. The association took an option, good until May 31, when it must pay $500,000 cash to bind the sale.

Lacking funds it opened a public subscription campaign headquarters today, under the direction of Cornelius N. Bliss, chairman of the association's board.

FIRE DESTROYS 16 PIGS AND COW

Flames Level Barn On Farm Near Ashland; Cause Unknown.

ASHLAND—Fire this morning destroyed a large barn on the farm of Kent Swineford at Paradise Hill, near here.

Also lost in the blaze were 16 pigs, destroyed in a shed at the rear of the barn, a cow, an automobile, garden tools and some foder. No estimate was made on the loss.

Origin of the fire is not known. The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Swineford who notified the Ashland Volunteer fire department, but the blaze was out of control by the time the equipment arrived.

DEM LEADERS IN SENATE WATCH ECONOMY DRIVE

Declares Congress Determined to Steer Clear of Roosevelt Request for New Levies.

(By United Press)

WASHINGTON—Three Democratic leaders—Alben W. Barkley, Ky., Pat Harrison, Miss., and James F. Byrnes, S. C.—said today that congress was determined to cut federal expenditures sufficiently to avoid new taxes or an increase in the national debt limit.

The economy drive pushed forward yesterday when the senate, without a single protest, approved a $251,822,588 emergency defense appropriation bill reduced $20,000,000 below budget estimates.

Simultaneously, the house sent to the senate a $1,032,164,612 treasury-post office bill, representing a budget cut of $11,154,900. Previously, the house had chopped $84,500,000 from budget estimates in approving $1,100,187,000 for independent offices.

"Congress is trying to cut down," said Barkley, "so as to avoid new taxes or an increase in the national debt limit, neither of which is a happy prospect."

The president, in his annual budget message to congress asked for $460,000,000 in new taxes. Harrison, chairman of the senate finance committee, said the chances of avoiding such legislation—especially undesirable to an election year—are "promising."

"I've never seen sentiment stronger in congress for retrenchment so as to balance expenditures and revenue," he said. "That's a healthy condition. It is only by that kind of procedure that we are going to avoid increased taxes or an increase in the national debt."

Harrison said house and senate appropriations committees (thus far had "done a beautiful job" in trimming supply bills below budget recommendations, and "that's the only solution to the tax problem."

"The Finns ain't Jews, are they?" Mrs. Spelvin said. "And the Norwegians ain't Jews, too, are they?"

"No," he said, "but that ain't the idea. The idea is the Jews are sore at the Nazis, so we get sucked in to help the Finns against the Russians, and then the Nazis move in to help the Russians against us and the Allies. So we win the war for the Jews. That's why you see so many Jews rooting for benefit shows for the Finns."

"Jews like Herbert Hoover," she said. "He is a stooge for them," Mr. Spelvin said.

"And President Roosevelt, too?" she said. "Are Hoover and Roosevelt partners now?"

"Don't be clever," he said.

STRICKEN AT 64

Lexington Woman Dies Here After 2-Week Illness.

LEXINGTON—Mrs. Bertha Anne Schindler, 64, died in Mansfield General hospital last night after a two-week illness.

She was born near Lexington and had lived in this vicinity her entire life. Her husband, William Schindler, died seven years ago. Mrs. Schindler was a member of the Church of Christ of this community.

Surviving are seven children, Mrs. Evah Durbin, Silas and Orville Schindler, Mansfield; Chas. Schindler, Mrs. Winona Dill, Mrs. Zillah Bahr, Lexington, and Mrs. Rhea Blackburn of Martinsburg, O.; two sisters, Mrs. Blanche Luscomb of Denver, and Mrs. Belle Gray of Helena, Okla.; a brother, Clayton Culbertson of Enimence, Mo., and 20 grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p. m. Sunday at the Snyder funeral home with Rev. Jack Mellick officiating. Burial will be in Lexington cemetery.

FAIR ENOUGH!

George Spelvin Suspects A Plot In Sympathy Being Shown For Finnish Nation

—By WESTBROOK PEGLER

NEW YORK—George Spelvin, the average American, has been running a fever about this business of raising money for the old lady an argument.

He often does this to get straightened out. He uses the old lady for his other self, but she is smarter than his other self—or his regular self, either, if it comes down to that—so she usually bends his ears back. Then Mr. Spelvin adopts her ideas on the proposition as his own, which is legally all right, because she is his old lady and what's hers is his.

"Like last night, Spelvin said, "It certainly looks suspicious to me."

"What is suspicious about it?" she asked. She didn't bother to ask what looked suspicious, because her part is to give him an argument. Sometimes before they are through he will be arguing her way, and then he will go around impressing people how smart he is on her ideas.

"What is suspicious about it?" she said. "Why, sending all this money to those Finns," Mr. Spelvin said. "I don't see anything suspicious," she said.

"That's all you know," said Mr. Spelvin. "You know what they are saying, don't you? It is a conspiracy to get us hopped up and then get us into the war to save the Jews?"

"Who has been giving you that?" she said. "Why, it's all over town," he said. "Everybody is onto it. Ask anybody."

"The Finns ain't Jews, are they?" Mrs. Spelvin said. "And the Norwegians ain't Jews, too, are they?"

"No," he said, "but that ain't the idea. The idea is the Jews are sore at the Nazis, so we get sucked in to help the Finns against the Russians, and then the Nazis move in to help the Russians against us and the Allies. So we win the war for the Jews. That's why you see so many Jews rooting for benefit shows for the Finns."

"Jews like Herbert Hoover," she said. "He is a stooge for them," Mr. Spelvin said.

"And President Roosevelt, too?" she said. "Are Hoover and Roosevelt partners now?"

"Don't be clever," he said.

"I guess you must be right, my hero," Mrs. Spelvin said.

"Sure," said Mr. Spelvin. "It is one of the most suspicious things I ever saw. That propaganda is all over town."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's nice to know—as I see by the papers—that Clark Gable remembered all the things the ex-Mrs. Gable (Josephine Dillon) taught him. Miss Dillon was commenting on Gable's Rhett Butler performance, prior to taking on a new assignment as college dramatic teacher in Missouri.

There must have been a number of other things this Gable guy remembered, facing the toughest job of his life, and again facing another one in "Strange Cargo."

He could have recalled, for one thing, his barnstorming start with the Jewel Players of Kansas City, his best equipment for a dramatic career (this is how Clark describes it) a "voice that could out-yell friendship and brought him his anything in the house"—and how he got that voice, yelling to make himself heard from the tops of Oklahoma prairie oil rigs.

There was stock in Houston, Texas, and finally—Broadway. "Machinal," the play was, and the critics were nice about it. More plays, and the time he began to get a little "fat-headed" with success, he says so himself—and had to give himself a mental dressing-down to work the "ham" out of his system. And Los Angeles, and the part of Kiefer Sauer in "The Last Mile" and Lionel Barrymore in the audience.

And the film test—for a role in "Bird of Paradise"—with Gable wearing a lionelish, his hair curled, and a flower stuck over his EAR. . . . No wonder he hit pictures as a bearded cowboy.

And eventually, Rhett Butler, who remembered all the things Josephine Dillon taught him, and a few other things besides. . . .

CONFIRMS TWO

Senate O. K.'s Appointment of Lucas, Loudonville Postmasters.

Appointments of postmasters at Lucas and Loudonville were confirmed today by the U. S. senate, a dispatch from Washington said.

Hoyt Leiter was named to the post at Lucas and William A. Coopers with Jane Cow's "Romeo and Juliet" production, and the sudden silver lining to his dark cloud of ambition—a part in "What Price Glory?" and, when master H. W. Zediker resigned, Hale Hamilton quit the show, produced by the Quirt role, and six post for six and a half years.
